AT THE close of the college year 1921-22 our University has passed one more milestone in its steady development and progress. Outstanding among its many achievements for this year are its contests with Eastern colleges in debate and football, its higher scholarship standards and its further perfecting of Washington's Honor Code.

As her sons and daughters leave Washington they are desirous of a record of their college days. The 1922 Tyee has tried to present this record as completely as has been possible—to include those events which have been representative, and those persons who have faithfully served Washington.

It has wished to present more than bare happenings in the realm of fact and to carry its readers into the realm of personal association and aspiration. It has endeavored to include the spirit of the school, that intangible thing, which all of us have felt, and which has made us love our Alma Mater.

The editor hopes that the 1922 Tyee will embody this spirit, and that, with the passing of the years, it will bring a host of happy memories to Washingtonians, and will arouse long-forgotten dreams of those quickly gone, but ever appreciated, college days.

University

EMERGING from what has been characterized as "the pioneering hang-over," the University of Washington in 1921 and 1922 climbed another rung on the ladder of western educational supremacy.

Building a university in the Far West involves many difficulties not apparent on the surface. The State's pioneers made their way to this frontier around Cape Horn, leaving thousands of miles behind them all the sources of intellectual development that they had known, believing that there could be nothing fine developed here except by contact with those far-off places.

As the West grew populous, this feeling became the inheritance of the children of those early frontiersmen and their opinions governed the attitude of emigrants. So thoroughly did this point of view become established in the state, that it is only with great difficulty that it is being dislodged.

But, with the announcement of the success of Washington's raised scholastic standards, this past year has actually done more to stifle the age-old disbelief in the West. Of all the great universities in the country, Leland Stanford alone ranks with Washington in scholastic standards. Better entrants are obtained by Washington, for her raised standards govern admission as well as continuance in the institution.

Every school and college in the University of Washington reaches normal American standard. That is the first aim of the administration.

In forestry and fisheries, however, the University of Washington is supreme. In other fields in which the State of Washington is especially interested, the University ranks away above normal American standard. In electrical engineering, research men are retained to aid in the development of Washington's tremendous water power. Nearly every commercial variety of clay is found in the State of Washington; therefore, the University has a specialized department of ceramics in its college of mines.

Chimes Tower

The building program of the University has gone forward this year at a satisfactory rate. Education hall will be completed this summer and the frame buildings in which the architecture department and the book store are now housed will be razed. A library, or a unit of such a building, is the next structure to be built. When that is completed, the present library will be turned into a Student Union building.

Student life at Washington is the most commendable to be found in the country, according to statements made by virtually every visitor who becomes acquainted with the University. The almost total absence of artificiality and aristocracy is the envy of representatives of many another institution.

Financial simplicity is a marked characteristic of the university. The students are financially poor. About thirty-three per cent of the men are entirely self-supporting, fifty per cent partially. Fifteen per cent of the women support themselves; twenty-one per cent contribute to their own support.

Within the student body there is no Greek-Independent feud. There is no "town and gown" feud between the city and the university. The morale of the place is commendably wholesome.

The Campus in Autumn

Liberal Arts

THE oldest college in the University of Washington, that of liberal arts, is once more the largest, 1,221 students being found in its ranks. Denny hall, which formerly housed the entire university, at the present time is sufficient for but one of the two divisions of the college.

All the branches in the classical language and literature group, including the departments of English, Romanic, Teutonic, Oriental and classical languages and literatures, now hold their classes in Denny. The philosophic group, which comprises the department of sociology, political science, history, and philosophy, is located in Philosophy hall.

Professor Edmond S. Meany, Keeper of Washington Traditions and head of the history department, still maintains his office in Denny hall. It is indeed fitting that he, who so lovingly guards our traditions, should be found in Washington's oldest building.

"Under the clock in Denny" is still the most favored spot for committee meetings, trysts and political bee-buzzings, the old timepiece clicking on as faithfully as when first set up years ago. Denny steps, too, retain their popularity as a college rendezvous.

Across the hall from the clock is the office of Dean David Thomson, where a never-ending line of worried seniors and puzzled freshmen awaits the sympathetic advice of their dean.

The entire annex, formerly the University assembly hall, is occupied by the English department. Romanic language classes are held on the second and third floors. Up in the far corner of the attic the play acting classes present amateur theatricals for one another's approval. "The Crow's Nest" is what they term their miniature treatre.

College of Science

FOURTEEN departments compose the college of science which star-gazes at the observatory, asphyxiates all trespassers at Bagley hall, dissects and investigates at Science hall, and studies all the time at the Gatzert building, Home Economics, and Philosophy hall.

Dr. Henry Landes, member of the faculty since 1895, is dean of the college of science, which has a teaching staff of eighty, and an enrollment of about six hundred and fifty. With the general decrease of University enrollment the number of science majors has decreased perhaps by forty.

There are five honorary fraternities for the science students. Sigma Xi is the science honorary for men and women; Phi Lamda Upsilon awards the man who is a "chem shark," while Iota Sigma Phi honors the woman chemist. For pre-medics students there is Pi Mu Chi for the men and Sigma Epsilon for the women.

In 1903 the arts and sciences, formerly harbored together in Denny hall, were separated and classes in geology, zoology, botany, mining, civil, mechanical and electrical engineering moved into Science hall. The college was organized in 1912 with Doctor Landes at the head. Gradually four branches of science separated themselves from the college, forming the college of mines, the college of engineering, the college of pharmacy and the college of fisheries.

Progress in research work is made each year by the different departments, helping to solve economic problems. Last year Doctor Landes completed a report on the shale and clay industries of the state. Trevor Kincaid, professor of zoology, and an authority on his subject, continues his work on a method of artificial culture of native clams and oysters.

College of Business Administration

TO raise scholastic standards, to strengthen and consolidate business administration courses, and to gain better contact of faculty and students with the business world has been the aim this year of the college of business administration.

Within the college perhaps one of the most important changes has been the introduction of a curriculum in which none but five-hour subjects are given. A five-year course in the college is contemplated.

Additions to the teaching staff this year have been made chiefly from men in the business field. Many of these instructors conduct only a few college courses, spending most of their time in business. In this way the views of the business man are known by the student and each has a better understanding of the work of the other.

Dean Stephen I. Miller has spent one-half of his time on the campus, having been connected for this year with the Northwest Electrical Service League. Thomas L. Kibler, professor of transportation, has been the acting dean. The college enrollment was 1011, a more normal figure than that of the last few years.

More than fifty apprentices were placed this year, as the apprenticeship plan started last year in maritime commerce has been extended to banking, accounting and marketing courses. By this plan the senior spends alternate quarters working down-town, guided by an evening seminar held once a week. To show students the value of college training in business, a Seattle firm is offering two scholarships to this year's graduates of the city high schools which will give a boy and a girl two years in the college of business administration with the assurance of a position if they are graduated in merchandising.

The practice of sending professors to foreign colleges is being continued. Dr. Macy M. Skinner has been teaching at Canton Christian college, China, and he has sought to further trade relations with this state. A scholarship exchange with a Chilean university will begin next fall, and two Washington students will probably be sent to study in South America.

The Business Administration Council, elected by the students in the College of Business Administration, is an organization promoting student spirit, cooperation between the faculty and the student body, and fostering the Mentor System, a big brother plan for freshmen.

College of Education

MOVING day for the college of education will come this summer, when the college moves next door to Education hall. After hovering about Home Economics building for five years, the education majors have become attached to the place, so they are glad that the new hall is also Collegiate Tudor Gothic style of architecture and is nearby.

The future teachers of young America have a special library, which gained about $1000 worth of books this year, growing along with the college. A studious quiet characterizes the education library as well as the college, which is one of the largest in the University.

One change in the teaching staff was made this year when Alexander C. Roberts came to fill George E. Freeland's place. The college, which has grown steadily, began with the department of education, which became the school of education in 1913.

Frederick E. Bolton, dean of education since it became a college in 1915, knows the standing of every student in the department. He seeks to further educational progress by training the best type of teachers. Graduates in education receive a five year normal diploma, entitling them to teach for that time in country schools. After two years of successful teaching a life diploma is awarded.

Dean Bolton attended educational society meetings on two trips to the East this year. He is chairman of a standardization committee of the American Council of Education, and is interested in summer schools as the summer session director at Washington.

Pi Lambda Theta for women and Phi Delta Kappa for men are the college of education honorary fraternities. Dennes C. Troth attended the Phi Delta Kappa convention at Chicago last fall as a delegate from the local chapter.

College of Engineering

SCIENTIFIC research in problems of general interest to the Northwest, and of technical interest to scientists in every line, and the publication of the results of such investigations in the form of pamphlets is the object of the Engineering Experiment station of the University of Washington. The station is maintained as a part of the regular college work and is directly under the control of Dean C. E. Magnusson of the college of engineering. The rest of the staff is composed of the president of the University and the heads of all of the scientific departments of the University. Its fifteenth bulletin, a thorough discussion of electric heating of residences, by Edgar A. Loew of the electrical department, has recently been placed on the market.

The engineering college still maintains its registration record of an approximate fourteen per cent of the entire University registration, with about seven hundred students. Of the departments in the college the electric division is the most popular, having sixty per cent of the enrollment. Chemical engineering, which is a comparatively new field, is rapidly gaining in popularity.

This is the twenty-sixth year of the college's establishment, which was largely due to the efforts of Professor Edmond S. Meany. In that first year there were thirteen entrants. Dean Magnusson, the present head of the college, came to Washington in 1906 as a professor. In 1917 he became acting dean of the college and in 1921 was appointed dean. He obtained his training at the universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota, and was a member of the teaching staff of the University of New Mexico before coming to Washington. He is actively engaged in many organizations for the promotion of scientific investigation.

The teaching staff of the college of engineering, which Dean Magnusson considers very satisfactory, remains practically unchanged from last year.

College of Fine Arts

WASHINGTON boasts several artist colonies hidden away in the basement of Meany hall, in the attic of Philosophy, or in the old architecture building behind the bookstore.

If success is attained by long hours of practice, the aspiring young vocalists and pianists will be sure to reach a high rung on the ladder of success. From sunrise until sunset strains of music issue through the lower windows of Meany hall.

On December 7 the chorus and orchestra presented Haydn's oratorio, "The Creation," before the student body, faculty and University friends. "The Shogun," an opera by Luders, taken from George Ade's novel of the same name, was given during the latter part of April by a large cast under the direction of Dean Irving Glen.

Phi Mu Alpha, men's honorary musical fraternity, and Mu Phi Epsilon, women's musical honorary, each pledged their quota of members during the year.

Up in the "art attic," as our smocked friends like to call their six large class-room studios, there has grown during the past nine months a spirit which immeasurably pleases both students and instructors—that feeling of loyalty to their own department without which no real enthusiasm can be maintained.

Their Art club has developed into a live organization of seventy-five members. In November they gave a Bohemian party and in February they held a smock party in the "attic." Lambda Rho, women's honorary art sorority, has also furthered the good spirit during the year.

Art work for the Varsity Ball, Junior Prom and campus theatrical productions, has been done by the students in painting and design. In May they held their open house.

Lights burn day and night as the architects patiently bend over their drawing boards, working out problems to be entered in eastern competitions. Frequently these problems are returned with honorable mentions.

Working under Dean Glen is a staff of nineteen instructors, eight in music, seven in painting, sculpture and design, and four in architecture.

College of Fisheries

SERVICE to the state, the public and the fishery industry, as well as service to the students, characterizes the work of the college of fisheries—the only one in the world outside of Japan. Housed in three of the old training station buildings near Lake Washington, the college specializes in practical, scientific work.

Twenty men, including fishermen and cannery owners, are enrolled in the winter short course. An innovation this year will be summer courses at Friday Harbor. Dean John N. Cobb, Martin Norgore and Howard H. Hungerford are instructors in the college, which was established in 1919.

Clarence L. Anderson, alumnus and instructor in fisheries, won the Scandinavian American Foundation scholarship this year, and has obtained a year's leave of absence to study fisheries in Norway.

An expensive seven-month salmon feeding experiment was begun in January to determine which foods give the best results at the least cost. The results of this work will be given to the State, which finds the maintenance of hatcheries a big problem.

At the request of the State Fisheries board a biological survey of Washington's aquatic resources is being made. This, along with oyster investigation, will be continued through the summer and through future years.

The display of model fishing apparatus has been increased, and leading twine manufacturers are working to complete the college equipment. Several of the miniature fish traps that would have cost $250 were constructed by students. In addition to the use of tin containers, the college cannery is demonstrating the use of glass containers in canning fish products.

In local waters 200,000 Chinook of varying ages, 3000 Chum, 1500 Humpback, 100,000 Silver trout and 230,000 Grayling were planted this year by the college. Development of the hatchery has been continuous. Every month more calls come to the college service department for aid in solving fishery problems. Fishermen, county and state, turn to the expert knowledge of the college of fisheries.

College of Forestry and Lumbering

ALTHOUGH the name of this college implies that instruction is given only in one or two branches of the subject of forestry, it is possible for the student to major in four different general lines with the choice of numerous specialties in each. The college is not officially departmentalized, but opportunity is offered to study in forest administration and finance, logging engineering, forest products engineering, or general lumbering.

In equipment it stands second to none in the country. A new building, the permanent forest products laboratory, which will be, for the time being, used for class work as well, was constructed and opened for work in 1921. It is built on the same architectural plan as the rest of the newer buildings on the campus and is situated on the south end of the plot known as Rainier vista.

The building contains all the facilities needed in any of the modern methods by which the practical work is done. The subjects which can not be taught in the class room are taken out into the field and studied first hand. The school is very fortunate in having the government timber testing laboratories located there, where research work is carried on. At present the University is negotiating with the state in a timber land deal in which the University's scattered tracts will be exchanged for a solid tract of sixty thousand acres in the Pilchuck basin east of Everett, Washington. When this is done the timber is to be turned over to the college of forestry for scientific management and will afford an opportunity for practical work in forestry unequalled by any other college in the country.

The college is under the direction of Dean Hugo Winkler who has been a large factor in its growth to its present size and standing.

School of Journalism

DEVELOPING from an irrepressible gang, sponsoring The Daily gang runway and the swinging door of The Daily shack, the school of journalism has taken steps in departmental growth and dignity during the year of 1921-22.

A Journalism council was inaugurated last spring to foster departmental unity and interest. It is composed of six members chosen from the four classes. A mentor system was organized in October by this body, through which every underclassman, registering with the intention of entering the school of journalism, is provided with a consulting mentor to help with any scholastic difficulties.

The Tenth Annual Newspaper Institute of the State of Washington was highly successful. It was held the week of January 23-28, concluding Saturday night with a real Hawaiian banquet furnished by the Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce in the Commons.

The Press council instituted last year to elect The Daily editor proved so successful that the A. S. U. W. constitution was amended to provide for a Tyee press council to select the Tyee editor in the same manner.

Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalism fraternity, and Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, with memberships of six and thirteen respectively, have carried on an active program.

Publications have kept pace with the school. The Columns subscription has increased about two hundred copies per month until in February it reached the thousand mark. The Sun Dodger has developed accordingly and this year printed five hundred more copies of its Literary Digest number than were printed last year when they burlesqued The American Magazine.

The journalists can write "30" at the end of a well-spent year.

The journalism council was organized to form a connecting link between the faculty of the school of journalism and the students. The council has planned and managed the state high school, the P. I. P. A. and the Washington Press Association conventions.

School of Law

INHABITING the top floor of Commerce hall is the law school tribe, 177 strong, who with their yell, "assault and battery, broken jaw, murder, arson, Washington law," greet the students, in meeting assembled, at frequent intervals during the year.

The law library, far famed as the best place on the campus in which to study as well as the Tammany hall of campus politicians, the Moot court, large class rooms, and the north entrance of Commerce hall, which has been appropriated as a smoking rendezvous, constitute the haunts of the future barristers.

More than forty steel engravings and etchings of prominent English and American judges, a number of them autographed, were presented to the school during the autumn quarter by the Washington State Bar Association.

From a small personal collection of law books owned by John T. Condon, the law library of the University of Washington has grown to be the largest and best of any Pacific Coast institution. It contains on its shelves more than 29,000 volumes, 3000 of which were either given to the University or were purchased by the department during the past year.

Seeking for new worlds to conquer, the lawyers descended to The Daily "shack" on December 16 and put out a red-ink edition of the paper.

The University of Washington Law Association arranged the smoker held in Little's Hall February 15. Phi Delta Delta, women's honorary legal sorority, and Phi Delta Phi and Phi Alpha Delta, men's legal honoraries, have pledged these students during the year whom they feel possess the necessary qualifications for successful legal careers.

Since its establishment in 1899, Dean Condon has presided over the destinies of the law school. Other members of the faculty are Harvey Lantz, Ivan W. Goodner, Clark P. Bissett and Leslie J. Ayer, professors of law, and J. Gratton O'Bryan, lecturer in law.

College of Mines

MINES students are proud of the new many-windowed mines laboratory that fringes the southern horizon of the campus. The building was formally dedicated by President Suzzallo September 23, 1921, but was not occupied until the spring quarter. Built at a cost of $125,000, it is the only ceramics laboratory west of Ames, Iowa, and will be second to none in the United States when completely equipped.

Machinery has been installed for the testing and manufacturing of structural wares, refractories, pottery, enamelled metals, abrasives, cements, limes, and plasters, and thermal insulators. The ceramics students will share the plant with the Northwest Experiment Station, and one end of the laboratory will be devoted to coal-washing research, to find methods of removing impurities from coal with the least waste.

Development of the resources of the State of Washington emphasizes the importance of our clay and coal wealth, according to Dean Milnor Roberts. The state is rich in vast pits of every variety of clay—shales, glacial, pleistocene, basaltic; and her coal mines support an annual payroll of $15,000,000. Washington has offered ceramics work since 1919, being one of six institutions in the United States where it is taught.

A striking contrast is presented by the magnificent modified collegiate Tudor Gothic architecture of the fourth and final mines building on the campus, to the days of '94, when the college of mines was first established, or to those early days when the only mines laboratory was in the basement of Denny hall.

There are four men on the staff of mines instructors. The college has enrollment of 80, with 18 short-course students during the winter quarter.

Lyle Zickrick, who holds the first Arthur A. Denny fellowship in mines, has been doing graduate research work in metallurgy since September. Four other graduates are doing research work with the aid of scholarships provided by the co-operative fund of the United States Bureau of Mines and the University College of Mines. They are B. M. Larsen and John Alden, metallurgy; A. Lee Bennett, ceramics, and William McCullough, coal mining.

College of Pharmacy

STUDENTS in the college of pharmacy were saddened this year by the death of Associate Prof. A. W. Linton, who died at his home January 26 after an acute attack of typhoid fever. Professor Linton was an alumnus of the University, having received his M. A. degree here in 1915. He had served as a member of the pharmacy faculty nine years, was held in the highest respect by all his students, and was prominent in scientific and pharmaceutical circles throughout the United States.

Professor Linton was secretary of the Washington State Pharmaceutical Association for many years. He did editorial work for the Pacific Drug Review, and left an unfinished book on Prescription Practice.

The niche left vacant by the death of Professor Linton is being filled by Mr. Cornelius Osseward, a graduate of Columbia and Northwestern Universities, who has spent many years in the prescription drug business. Professor Osseward has been a member of the state board of pharmacy ten years and is now a member of the executive board under the state administrative body.

The 120 genial students who haunt the reeking fumes of the aromatic old chem shack, alias Bagley hall, point with pride to the fact that Dean Charles W. Johnson is playing an important part in the tenth decennial revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia, to be published about 1925.

The pharmacopoeia is the druggists' Bible the country over, and is authorized by congress under the food and drugs act. Dean Johnson is a member of the sub-committee on organic chemicals, volatile oils and proximate assays.

Helen Arkley, who won her B. S. degree in December, holds the first $500 Arthur A. Denny fellowship in pharmacy. "Reactions of Nitrocyll Chloride" is the title of her thesis. Miss J. Robin Wilkes, who is also doing graduate research work, has chosen "Mint Oils Produced on the Pacific Coast" as the topic of her thesis.

There are five members on the staff of Pharmacy instructors. Over 120 students are enrolled in the college.

Graduate School

INCREASING more rapidly than any other school or college in the University of Washington, the graduate school has an enrollment exceeding 750 for the year 1921-22. The majority of graduate students are working for Master's degrees, yet there is a marked increase this year in the number of candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

The graduate school was formed in 1911. Dr. Frederick M. Padelford was appointed dean, succeeding Dr. J. Allen Smith in 1920.

The school is well supported by fellowships and scholarships. There are forty-six fellowships, ranging from $500 to $1,000, and twenty-five scholarships from $180 to $450.

A summary of enrollment by universities for this year indicates the wide appeal of the graduate school. Eighty-five Washington, six Harvard, five Whitman, and five Willamette graduates are registered. Sixty-three other institutions, including the University of Utrecht in Holland, University of Toronto, and Otago University in New Zealand have been represented.

An expansive policy of publication has been entered upon by the graduate school. This includes the Pacific Review, a quarterly devoted to literary, economic, social and political discussion, with special emphasis upon the culture and problems of the Pacific world.

In February a Graduate club was organized to develop a spirit of fellowship and spirit in the school.

Department of Home Economics

THE home economics department is held in high esteem by persons over state and country because it has done work of a practical and cooperative nature. Majors in all courses of home economics have been able to cooperate with men in their especial line of work and have received practical knowledge while they were giving valuable service.

Miss Effie Raitt is head of the department, and under her are seven assistants who are training the home economic students.

Miss Martha Koehne of the dietetics department and her class took a group of children at Hollywood farm who were under-nourished and brought them back to normal. Miss Koehne has held baby clinics during the winter and spring quarters. Babies who were under-nourished were brought to the laboratory, where Miss Koehne, with the aid of two doctors, advised the mothers as to the diet. The students of the dietetics class followed up the cases.

It was announced at commencement last year that the Bon Marche would give a $600 annual fellowship to a graduate of home economics who would, while getting her master's degree, give a specified amount of work to the store. Miss Rose Fraser holds the fellowship this year and is testing textiles in that store.

By cooperating with down-town stores, the costume design class has furnished designs for dresses while the stores furnished materials and color schemes. The girls were paid for their designs.

The efficiency of the department has been proved by the fact that four state universities, after engaging a Washington graduate in home economics, asked for others at the end of the first year. One graduate is now earning $3,000 annually.

The Library School

ONLY one man has been graduated from the library school—that was in 1916, but now there are two enrolled. Formerly the school gave only the bachelor of arts degree, offering a four year course. The degree of bachelor of science in library science will be granted this year for the completion of the new five year course.

Twenty-one students are taking library work, seven of whom are candidates for the library science degree. Graduates of Oregon, Reed and Whitman colleges, the University of Washington and the College of Puget Sound are among those taking the advanced work. "The Use of the Library," a short elective course, was given this year to give beginners a taste of library work, and to give others general knowledge of a library.

Library students have charge of the shelves near the entrance, where posters advertise the books on the shelves to the reading public. That is about all the date-maker, the requirement-reader and the research reveler see of the library school. The teaching staff of five administers the library as well as instructing students.

William E. Henry, director of the school, heads one of the younger schools of the University, but one that has graduates all over the United States. The first class from the library school was graduated in 1913, and every year about twelve more librarians go out to guide the reading of Mr. Business Man and Wee Willie. As the librarian's position resembles the teacher's, the library school stresses the fact that the work is a for mof social service.

The library building was erected for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition in 1909 as a social hall. Some day it may return to its old status when a new library is built. But for the present, the library is the study hall of the students, the storehouse of books and the home of the library school.

THE 1972 TREE

Reserve Officers Training Corps

THE University is proud of its 911 young soldiers, all of whom wear small gold stars on the right sleeves of their uniforms, the signs of distinguished rating given by the United States war department for 1920-21. Washington is one of the twenty colleges in the country to which such a rating is awarded, the twenty being chosen from among 134 units. There are but two others in the ninth corps area.

An unusual honor was granted to the unit on November 30, when it was selected to act as the guard of honor to Marshal Ferdinand Foch during his visit to Seattle. On Armistice Day the companies paraded in the city, and on November 16 they were reviewed and inspected by Major-General William M. Wright, commander general of the ninth corps area.

The annual Military Tournament of competitive drills was held May 6. On May 7 the Cadet Ball was given. Pledges to Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, were announced at this function. For the first time girls served on the Ball committee.

During the year the plotting room, base-end stations and battery commander station were perfected.

It was with the purpose of developing in University men strong character and high moral principles, and to inculcate in them an appreciation of the service which they owe to their country, that the Washington state legislature in 1909 re-established military training at the University of Washington, requiring all able-bodied underclassmen to drill five hours a week. At present there are 512 enlisted in the infantry division, 231 in the coast artillery, 105 in the air service, and 50 in the band, while 47 men are enrolled in advanced courses.

Colonel Charles L. Phillips is in command of the unit and has under him 11 commissioned officers of the United States army, 14 non-commissioned officers and enlisted men, and a large number of student cadet officers.

Associated Students of the University of Washington

A. S. U. W.

THAT self-government by student bodies in universities and colleges plans an average of 20 per cent of the day's work for students in those institutions is an important fact which is now receiving recognition.

The Associated Students of the University of Washington as a corporation is operated by students, alumni and faculty members. Nearly every University activity is handled by the organization.

Since the building of the Stadium, the operation of the student corporation has become an exact science, characterized by none of the slipshod methods common in such organizations. Bearing in mind the debt which the Stadium's construction brought, the management of the A. S. U. W. is making every effort by careful administration to care for all the needs of the student body's extra-curricular work.

The constitution adopted last year has been printed in pamphlet form suitable for distribution. Some slight revisions are still necessary, although the document was amended in January, 1922; but a tangible constitution to work with is such a boon that the existing deficiencies in it seem trivial.

Realizing that it is the minor sports which do the greatest good to the greatest number, the A. S. U. W. has made minor sports of boxing, hockey, swimming, golf and shooting. Of these five, hockey has shown the most surprising development in the past year.

A surplus of $6.61 for activities conducted last year was reported by Darwin Meisnest, graduate manager. When the fact that there was a deficit of $10,426 at the beginning of the year is considered, this $6.61 surplus report is gratifying. The net profit for the year was $13,802.74. A profit of $22,000 was realized from the summer activities in the Stadium. Coupled with the $15,000 received annually from student fees, this profit enabled the A. S. U. W. administration in 1921 to pay off two years' bonds instead of one.

Another summer of activity in the Stadium is contemplated. "The Wayfarer" will probably be produced again and a chautauqua will be brought to Seattle and presented there under the student body management.

Government of the A. S. U. W. is vested in a group of officers and a board of directors elected annually. This latter body, known as the board of control, is composed of three faculty members, three alumni members and nine student members. Of the latter group, one is a graduate student, two representatives are seniors, two are juniors and one is a sophomore.

A ten-dollar fee is required of every student member of the corporation who enrolls for a full scholastic year. Ten per cent of the fee collected from each student is put into a student hospital fund, 40 per cent goes to a building fund, the remainder into a general fund. The fee gives the student qualification for membership in the corporation, free subscription to the University Daily and free or reduced admission to such football, basketball, baseball games, tennis, track and wrestling meets, crew regattas, debates, oratorical contests and musical concerts as may be designated by the board of control.

Employed officials of the corporation are the graduate manager, manager of the bookstore, editor-in-chief of the Daily, and editor of the Tyee. Darwin Meisnest has been graduate manager since March, 1919. Percy Dearle, for many years manager of the book store, resigned in February, 1922. George Astel and Stanley Orne have been Daily editors this year and Ruth Ainsworth Tyee editor. The management of the book store is independent of all other activities of the A. S. U. W.

The definition of major and minor sports and the awards made for participation in them come under the jurisdiction of the board of control. Football, baseball, track, rowing and basketball are the present major sports. Upon recommendation of the graduate manager, the board of control may now grant a sweater to a student serving in the capacity of student athletic manager.

THE 1972 TREE

The A. S. U. W. subsidizes women's athletics. Women's "W" is now awarded under a point system instead of under a team membership system, as formerly.

Debate and oratory come under the management of the student corporation. The board of control fixes awards for participation in these activities.

Robert S. Macfarlane was the 1921-22 president of the corporation. Jack Bates was succeeded as vice-president in the fall of 1921 by Peter Summersett. Artie Lee Hart was secretary until January, 1922, when Vera Allen came into office.

The board of control members until January, 1922, were: Robin Wilkes, graduate representative; Dean David Thomson, chairman student affairs committee; Prof. Leslie J. Ayer, chairman faculty athletic committee; Prof. Frederick A. Osborn, faculty representative; Edward W. Allen, '09, alumni representative; Tom Alderson, '96, alumni representative; Mrs. Margaret Meany Younger, '15, alumnae representative; Adelaide Fairbanks and Newman Clark, senior representatives; Celeste Moll and Robert Ingram, junior representatives, and Raymond Heily, sophomore representative.

Eilene Howell succeeded Adelaide Fairbanks in January; Lee Ketchum succeeded Celeste Moll. Harold Mann, A. S. U. W. yell king until January, was succeeded by Clair McCabe.

Women's Activities

REPRESENTATIVES of the Women's League, Y. W. C. A., and the W. A. A. form the Deputation committee, having for its purpose, the advertising of the University of Washington to the high school girls of the state. Catalogues containing useful information as to the kind of clothes to bring are sent to high school girls in towns too distant to be reached by speakers. The committee invites the high school girls of the city and the small neighboring towns to the Field Day, held every year on the Campus.

In addition to this committee work the Women's League has for two years brought concerts to the University. This year Arthur Hackett, tenor; Alma Gluck, soprano; Efrem Zimbalist, violinist; and Sophie Breslau, contralto, were heard by many students and town people. These concerts are under student management, the committee consisting of approximately 100 girls. Three per cent of the concert profits are given over to the Stadium fund.

Since the Women's League consists of all the women of the University and does, including the concerts, about an $8,000 business yearly, the Women's League office has been established in the Home Economics building. This serves as a point of contact for the girls. There the services of the Service secretary may be secured; there the girls may enlist in Women's League work.

The Y. W. C. A., as well as doing deputation work, maintains a Y. W. C. A. house which is supported by the rooms rented to college girls who make that their home. The house was furnished from the profits of several rummage sales; the girls are now working for a piano. This is a popular place for the girls to spend their spare time, as well as being useful as a meeting place for Y. W. committees.

The Women's League is an organization of which every woman in the University becomes a member upon matriculation.

The purpose of the Women's League is to promote a greater Washington by enlisting the support of every woman in campus activities. To this end, committees have been organized which provide for every interest. Among these, dramatic groups give training in amateur theatricals, and discussion groups provide an opportunity for discussing the problems of student life. One of the most highly organized committees, the student advisory, has for its purpose helping the new students to become acquainted with the campus. It provides a "big sister" for every freshman, whose duty it is to introduce her charge into the various phases of student activities.

The Women's League is financed entirely by a series of concerts given under its auspices in Meany hall. Artists of national reputation are brought here by the concert committee, affording the city a musical treat, as well as providing the Women's League with funds.

Women's Executive Council is a group composed of the presidents of the most important women's organizations on the campus. The entire authority for the making and enforcing of rules for women has been turned over to this committee by the Administration.

The discipline committee handles infringements of these rules. The social standards committee suggests standards of conduct and dress which are considered suitable for university women.

The Council is representative of every woman on the campus, because some group or organization of which she is a member has a representative there. The work of the Council has been effective as a step in student government.

DEBATE

THAT THE DOWN TOWN
GIRL IS MORE ADAPTED TO THE IDEALS OF THE
AVERAGE COLLEGE MAN
THAN THE CO-ED

MEANY HALL

FRIDAY

8:00 P.M.

Debate

WASHINGTON defeated Penn State in the much-heralded East-West debate this year by a two to one decision, bringing the forensic season to a successful close. The contest held April 17 in Meany hall with Robert Macfarlane, Kai Jensen and Ralph Graves supporting the Varsity, equalled the Princeton meet last year.

California made amends for last year's defeat in the women's varsity debate by scoring a two to one decision against Margaretta Stuart and Veida Morrow April 6 at Berkeley.

Plans have already been made for the formation of a national debate league, comprising three of the largest schools in the east, and Washington, Stanford and Oregon in the west. If this plan is carried through, the University will definitely take the position of one of the "big six" in national forensic circles.

This year the Varsity has tied for second place in the Pacific Tri-State league and has broken even in all non-conference debates. It is significant that at least one inexperienced debater has been a member of each team.

Penn State, Stanford, University of British Columbia, Whitman college and the University of Oregon were challenged by Washington varsity teams this year. Oregon and California were debated by the women's varsity. This schedule was chosen from a number of eastern and northwestern colleges which petitioned for meets with Washington.

Aspirants for the northwest oratorical championship are preparing manuscripts for the Tri-State contest to be held at Washington some time in May. Idaho came out victorious last year, but judging from the successes in the forensic field this season Washington is likely to carry away the laurels.

Sufficient credit can hardly be offered that would justify the hours of work that Coach Glenn Hoover has put forth for the benefit of the team. Mr. Hoover, a Washington debater, has worked tirelessly to perfect both the men's and the women's teams. His success is evidenced by the decisions this year. Sam Mullin, a varsity debater, has acted as debate manager.

QUESTION

Resolved: That a substantial measure of disarmament can prudently be undertaken before the League of Nations or some similar organization becomes established.

WASHINGTON — BRITISH COLUMBIA

January 13, 1922, Meany Hall

Sam Mullin, '23, and Ralph Graves, '22, upholding the affirmative for Washington won a unanimous decision over the Canadian team. Both men were participating for the first time on the Varsity. This debate opened the forensic season.

BRITISH COLUMBIA — WASHINGTON

January 13, 1922, Vancouver, B. C.

Kline Hillman, '22, and Peter Odegard, '22, lost a two to one decision to the British Columbia team on their home platform. Hillman won a letter last year. Odegard was representing the Varsity for the first time. They argued for the negative.

PUBLICATIONS

Sun Dodger

Frank Lockerby

The Sun Dodger is published monthly under Hammer and Coffin society. The editor, the assistant editors and the business manager are appointed for one year by the local chapter of the society. Sketches as well as brief comedy articles are used.

AS popular as any college comic in the country, the Sun Dodger continues adding spice to Washington joke-lovers, and has materially increased its pages. Since its founding a few years ago, the Sun Dodger has remained such a regular factor on the campus that during the nick-name controversy, some students were not quite certain whether the magazine was named after the teams, or the teams after the magazine.

The Sun Dodger occasionally publishes solicitations from professionals, and aims to keep its cover ever aflame with color. For one issue this semester, the cover alone cost more than two hundred dollars.

of Washington chapter. The editor, the assistant editors and the business manager of the Columns are appointed for one year by the chapter. All articles, including poems, submitted by students are considered.

THOUGH founded no earlier than February, 1921, with nerve as the only capital, the Columns today is being quoted in national newspapers and magazines. At first only the minority of students, not the majority, understood the need of developing a student magazine for expressing literary work and opinions. Since then, however, the Columns has so successfully shown that opinions can be made readable, humorous or attractive, that the latest report on the selling number alone shows an increase of more than half a thousand.

The Columns is published monthly under Sigma Upsilon, national fraternity, with Grub Street the University

The Forest Club Annual

THE FOREST CLUB ANNUAL, published by the members of the Forest club, college of forestry, University of Washington, is precedent to ideas for similar publications by other University of Washington colleges and schools. The annual is now on its tenth successful year and contains more than a hundred pages.

The purpose of the magazine is better explained in its own words:—

“A great proportion of the area of this state is suitable only for the production of forest crops, and due to the mild climate, especially in Western Washington, this area is better adapted to the practice of forestry than any other similar area in the world. The greatest lumber producing state in the Union, the State of Washington, MUST perpetuate its greatest asset—TIMBER . . .”

Attractable to the magazine is the care in selecting the illustrations, both for their fairness and beauty. Contributions of articles and pictures are made by forest rangers, students, professors and government agents.

The Washington Alumnus

PUBLISHED each month of the college year by the University of Washington Alumni Association, the Washington Alumnus is more or less of interest to students; one reason being that most of its graduate-student editors are still in school.

The Washington Alumnus is somewhat a medium between campus publications and the alumni's reading of the outside. The Alumnus is succeeding in completing a greater unity among the alumni, as well as continuing a constant familiarity between the graduates and their Alma Mater.

Among other sections The Washington Alumnus contains “With the Alumni,” a department for the printing of exchange letters from alumni. These letters in note form come from all parts of the world, and are of interest even to under-graduates.

The Washington Alumnus year by year is becoming more familiar to students and, with this familiarity, is appearing better service for after-graduate life.

Dramatic Season In Review

Dramatic Clubs Amalgamate

BY far the most epochal and significant event in the 1921-1922 dramatic season at the University of Washington was the effecting of the amalgamation of the two dramatic clubs, Mask and Quill and the University Dramatic club, into the Associated University Players. The two clubs had hitherto existed for divergent purposes. The personnel of Mask and Quill was especially interested in doing original work in staging, playwrighting and in music. The members of the University Dramatic association, on the contrary, were mainly interested in the technique of acting.

Thus the two clubs produced different types of plays. The University Dramatic association favored the more modern plays, while the Mask and Quill preferred original, little-theatre types of plays, in which there was greater opportunity for original work.

Glenn Hughes, made an instructor in dramatic art in 1921, felt that the department should supervise the plays put on by the dramatic organizations, so both clubs voted to produce under his direction. Each club had one major production with him as director.

They soon became full-fledged rivals and, inasmuch as supervision of the plays was already centered under one man, sentiment in favor of amalgamating the two clubs grew. The amalgamation was effected in the spring of 1921.

Glenn Hughes

Since Mask and Quill had a charter in the Associated University Players, a national organization, they agreed to call the new organization the Associated University Players.

Superior Work Results

That the joining of these two clubs has resulted in superior work in the theatrical arts, in the technique of acting, in the advancement in scenery designing, and in departure from precedent in the production and choice of plays is the conviction of everyone who has watched the development of the new organization.

THE 1922 TEE

Scene from Irish Play

Critics proclaim the 1921-1922 dramatic season the most successful in the history of Washington dramatics. Capacity audiences at each attraction and the laudatory expressions following, all testify that Washington dramatics have passed a most important milestone in their development, and now enjoy a place in the front row among campus activities.

Three Irish Plays

The 1921-1922 dramatic season was ushered in with the presentation of three one-act Irish plays, under the direction of Glenn Hughes, in Meany hall, October 7 and 8.

The three Irish plays were first presented during the summer, and the old adage that practice makes perfect was substantiated when the plays were repeated in October. Improvement in every way—subtle acting, discretion of theme color, clear characterization and interpretation—triumphed over the summer performance.

THE 1972 TREE

Irish Superstitions Portrayed

In the first play of the group, "A Pot of Broth," by W. B. Yeats, the superstitions of the Irish peasantry were played upon by Harold McClinton as a clever old tramp. McClinton's quality of waggish witticism, coupled with an attitude of confidence on the stage, well enabled him to take the part of the tricky, oily-tongued beggerman. The gullibility of two old Irish peasants was humorously and accurately portrayed by Margery Gilbert as Sibby and Sam Mullin as her husband, John. Margery Gilbert delighted the audience with the vivacious and charming manner in which she interpreted the unusual role of an Irish peasant woman.

"The Workhouse Ward," a comedy by Lady Gregory, was a dialogue between two old men in the Coon workhouse. It was full of Irish wit and native humor. Richard Bennett, as Mike, reached the peak of folklore interpretation with his Irish utterances. Margaret Shotwell, as Honor Donohoe, showed considerable ability, while Harold McClinton, as Michael Miskell, displayed his unusual capacity for character interpretation and expression.

Doris Callow Interpreted Character Well

The third play was comedy of more serious nature, called "In the Shadow of the Glen," by John Synge. Staunch Irish love and the peculiarity of Irish superstition was the predominating motif running through the play. Doris Callow, Richard Bennett, Grant Merrill and Gregory McMillan played the parts of Nora, Dan, the beggar and Michael, respectively. The most difficult role was taken by Doris Callow as Nora Burke, in which it was necessary for her to sustain emotions that swing on a balance between tragic and comic impulses. Doris Callow's approach to a real understanding and interpretation of the requirements of the character would have done credit to an actress of wider experience. Bennet, as Dan, injected the typical Irish passion of word and action. Grant Merrill successfully handled the part of the wandering tramp.

A ten-piece orchestra under the direction of Elma Dick and Victor Hess, baritone, provided Irish music throughout the production.

Candida

The Associated University Players furnished the one "heavy" play of the season in the presentation of "Candida," a three-act comedy satire by Bernard Shaw—said to be the "most actable of all Shaw's plays"—on November 18, in Meany hall.

It is a comedy with a clear theme satirizing the childishness of human nature and the shallowness of public opinion. Concise and straightforward as a dramatic work, it completely avoids the cheapness or artificiality of so many dramas dealing with domestic life. Everything in "Candida" is keen, sincere and amusing. There is nothing boring or objectionable. It has an almost satirical bearing on the average sex drama itself.

Cast Receives Commendation

Shaw's satire and brilliancy, as embodied in the three acts of Candida," were handled in a manner sufficiently effective to earn commendation for the members of the cast.

Jonathan Trumbull exceeded the highest expectations of the audience with his adept portrayal of Eugene Marshbanks, the love-bewildered poet. To love and not to understand; to swing between sentimental effusion and cold rationality; to be the target of vigorous satire; to be a Shavian poet, with the accompaniment of humiliating apologies; all combined, to be and not to be, is the task for the interpreter of Eugene Marshbanks. This was carried out clearly and effectively by Trumbull, whose distinct enunciation was a noticeable achievement for an amateur.

Another able interpretation was given by Grant Merrill, who took the part of Rev. James Mayor Morell, the sincere, always eloquent, husband of Candida. His role was full of painstaking impersonation. He did the part well in every detail, handling the reserved ministerial portrayal in an admirable manner.

Wilhelmina Crawford, in the title role, as the woman for whom the two men bid, played a role depicting modern womanhood. Miss Crawford's work had striking and uncommon merit.

Betty Steers, as Prosperpine Garnett, the pert typist of Morrell, one of the many women in love with Morrell, made an auspicious entry into campus dramatics.

Norris Miles' handling of the part of Mr. Burgess, Candida's father, was productive of much mirth through his happy interpretation of a shrewdly comic figure. Joe Greenleaf did good work as Morrell's curate.

Jack Wright managed the production and Mac Harshberger was responsible for scenic effects.

The Shrew in a Rage

ORIGINAL, varied, well presented and thoroughly entertaining was the Junior Girls' Vodvil given in Meany hall on January 28.

From a program of singing, dancing, acrobatics and nonsense patter, the comedy skit put on by Harold McClinton and Roy Rosenthal may be "spotted" as the most successful of the numbers. Their presentation of characteristic dances in costume came up to the usual high standard of these popular campus humorists. Hearty approval greeted even their encore act, in which they represented action in a football game viewed through a slow-motion camera.

A monologue entitled "The Boy from Brazil" by H. A. Thompson merited a close second on the bill. It was sparkling with fast wit and displayed versatility in character roles little short of professional.

Tumbling Act Well Received

Clayton Bolinger, Mac Brown and Russell Ferguson appeared in an unusual tumbling act. Whatever may have been lacking in physical accomplishments was made up by comedy.

"The Follies of Fashion," in which Ruth Bamford appeared in vocal solos, assisted by a dancing chorus of Lurline Brown, Beatrice Gould, Doreen Kennedy and Gretchen Brehm, carried out the title suggestion with a display of fashionable frocks.

McClinton and Rosenthal

Helen Graham won applause with an artistic and captivating dance in ballet costume. The dancing number by Beth Phillips and Victor Hurley was creditably presented and the setting used showed good taste.

A cleverly conceived skit, "Under the Spreading Piano Lamp," depicting campus life (as seen in a sorority house after a party) was given by

THE 1972 TREE

Gwendolyn Gordon, Susan Erwin, Dorothy Sebree and Julia Ripley. Criticism expressed the caution that it is not well to make too many personal references about people who are not familiar to the larger part of the audience.

The puppet show with Frank Spencer, Norris Miles, Claude Wakefield and Eugene Saunders, afforded an enjoyable departure from the ordinary assortment of acts. The movie films showing campus leaders was enlivened by clever sub-titles written by Harold McClinton and Donald McDonnell.

Hurley-Phillips Dance

The success of the entertainment must not be attributed to members of the cast exclusively. The stage lighting—an improvement over that of former campus Vodvils—added to the production. The work of the orchestra under the direction of Clifford Newdall was excellent.

The committee for the Vodvil was headed by Margery Gilbert, vice president of the Junior class. Other members of the committee were Dorothy Redmon, Donald McDonnell, Constance Phillips, Francis Griswold, Richard Bennett, Clifford Newdall and Clem Dumett.

The Taming of the Shrew

Criticism by Frederick M. Padelford

The Associated University Players pleased a large audience with their presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" in Meany hall, February 18. This was the first of Shakespeare's plays to be given in Meany hall in thirteen years.

As a whole the play was well cast, the lines were read with spirit and understanding, and the stage pictures were engaging. Judicious cutting reduced the action to eight scenes, requiring only three settings, and the changes were managed so that the play moved rapidly. The most interesting of the settings was the street scene in Padua, designed and executed by Miss Alfrida Storm of the art department. This setting was strictly in the new style, and combined striking color with quizzical design.

Harold McClinton played the role of Petruchio, the woman-tamer, with spirit, and was master of his audience. He did not suggest, however, the underlying good humor of Petruchio and failed somewhat to make the most of his less obvious lines, at times reading a bit mechanically.

Doreen Aldwell, as Katherine the shrew, played the part with so much fire that she overcame the initial disappointment of the audience in not seeing an Amazon in the role. Her acting was consistent throughout and nicely modulated. Joyce Hammer was an engaging Bianca, faithful to tradition. Grant Merrill gave an attractive rendition of Lucretio, the romantic lover.

Richard Bennett scored another triumph as Baptista, through unusually histrionic imagination making much of a relatively unimportant role. The part calls for an older make-up, however, than was given him. Forest Carter as Gremio had a good voice and a rather unusual stage presence, yet he only partially succeeded in bringing out the dry humor and whimsicality of the character, and he should have been made up as an elderly suitor.

Petruchio Humbles Katherine

THE 1972 TREE

Petruchio Carrying Katherine Away

Joseph Greenleaf gave an individual and well-conceived interpretation of Hortensio. Even in scenes where he had relatively few lines to support his acting, he did not once drop out of character, a merit that gave him a high place in the cast. Ralph Neely was an energetic Tranio, but did not adequately convey the impression of a servant in disguise. An opportunity for fine merriment was almost entirely lost when Tranio assumed the costume of Lucretio, his master, and again when Biondello, the second servant, discovered the change of attire.

Nathaniel Bender, who played Biondello, showed good appreciation of a clown's part, and should have been given more freedom. It remains to speak of the work of Norris Miles, who was a fun-making Grumio. This was one of the most satisfactory parts in the play. The remaining lesser roles were acceptably filled.

The new stage settings were prepared for the production. One was a rich set of brocaded draperies and the other the street scene which represented in a pictorial and conventionalized manner an early Italian street.

A special costume committee composed of Rose Silver, Mac Harshberger and Forest Carter produced praiseworthy results under the supervision of Miss Annette M. Edens, instructor in art.

WOMENS' LEAGUE DRAMATIC GROUPS

The Women's League Dramatic Groups, under the chairmanship of Harriet Doheny, have come into prominence this year on the campus through the numerous entertainments they have staged.

On February 16, an afternoon of one-act comedies was featured. The program was:

"Too Much Bobby," by Thalian Club, under leadership of Doris Callow; "Per Telephone," by Mantell Club, under direction of Sara Buchanan; "A Wise Old Maid," by L'Actriz Club, under direction of Maude Flood. This play was written by Josephine Powell, who is a member of the L'Actriz group.

A second afternoon of one-act comedies was held on March 2. Carol Wakefield directed a stunt put on by Wigs and Cues. The Masqueraders, made up entirely of town girls, staged an act under the leadership of Margaret Shotwell. Lemora McDonald directed the play presented by the Amard Club.

The groups were organized with a fourfold purpose, namely: to give everyone interested in dramatics an opportunity to take part in productions, regardless of skill; to furnish activity for those not taking part in other lines of work on the campus; to provide entertainment for Women's League meetings, mixers, etc.; and to further the interests of amateur dramatics at Washington.

Music Season in Review

WITH a continually growing music department, new faculty members, and the addition of unusually promising talent on the campus, Washington's musical season of 1921-1922 has been a most successful one.

Music week marked the first appearance of musical organizations this year. Two assemblies were held in Meany hall during the week. One was a matinee musical and the other a musical assembly under the direction of Dean Irving M. Glen. The enthusiastic response with which these were met by the entire student body was convincing that they accomplished the purpose of the slogan, "Give More Thought to Music." President Henry Suzzallo was honorary chairman of the Music Week committee, and Miss Frances Dickey, of the department of music, was a member.

Dean Glen

The University chorus and soloists presented Haydn's "Creation" at the annual mid-winter concert this year, on Wednesday, December 7, 1921. This oratorio is perhaps one of the most difficult ever attempted and its success may well be attributed to the untiring efforts of Dean Irving M. Glen, who directed it. To Miss Ada Tilley, also, credit is due for its success. Miss Tilley, who is an instructor in the college of fine arts, is a new member of the faculty this year. Her ability as a soprano soloist has been a favorable addition to several programs.

The University orchestra is a musical organization which works a great deal and receives little honor in return. The accompaniments for the oratorio and the spring opera represented untiring work and, for an amateur group, was highly commendable.

Phi Mu Alpha and Mu Phi Epsilon, the two honorary musical fraternities, standing for the furtherance of music in the University, have done efficient work in managing various musical events this year. The joint programs which are put on by the two organizations represent the constructive work they are doing.

Women's Ensemble, while not making any public appearance as a group, contributed largely to the cast of the spring opera.

University of Washington Glee Club

Glee Club

THE past season of the University Glee club has been one of the most strenuous in its entire history, and has deservedly won it a place among Washington's foremost activities. A tour covering the greater part of the state and all the local high schools made it possible for the Glee club to come into closer contact with the people than any other organization. To complete the plan of more widely advertising the University, Coach Enoch Bagshaw accompanied them on the tour and addressed the audiences at each city. Altogether the Glee club has appeared before approximately nine thousand people.

The program, which was under the direction of Dean Irving M. Glen, consisted of vocal and instrumental music and vaudeville. The replacement of the jazz band of former years by the violin sextette did much to raise the standard of the kind of music the Glee club is to represent. The sextette worked exceedingly well together for an amateur group in their rendition of Hadley's "Ballet of the Flowers."

The unmistakable hit of the entire program was the comedy skit, "In Those Dear Old College Daze," put on by Harold ("Hay") McClinton, Ray Crisler, Clayton Rychard and Clifford Newdall. It appealed to college students because it gave them a side of their college life that they had rarely seen, and it appealed to the general public because they thought they were getting a glimpse of college life at Washington. The act embodied strictly original ideas, and to that may be attributed its success. Grant Merrill was accompanist for the Glee club.

THE annual Spring Opera was given Thursday, April 20, in Meany Hall. "The Sho-Gun," by George Ade, was chosen this year. Members of the cast were selected from the chorus, women's ensemble and other musical students. Dean Irving M. Glen directed the presenting of "The Sho-Gun."

Particularly beautiful scenic effects, accurately reproducing Japanese palace and garden gates and a wonderful wistaria garden were unusual features of the production. The scenes were all exteriors.

The costumes were designed by Oriental students of the University and were accurate copies of Japanese royal costumes. No expense was spared to create unusual effects in the staging of "The Sho-Gun."

Dean Glen was particularly pleased with the cast of "The Sho-Gun," as the principals were exceptionally adapted to the parts portrayed. The comedy work of Thompson and McClinton and the singing of Katherine Peterson and Clifford Newdall were high lights of the production.

THE SHO-GUN" is an indirect treatise on the worship of titles, the potency of American "pull," and Yankee commercial invasion. On the imaginary isle of Ka-Choo in the Japanese sea between Japan and Korea, bachelors are the most despised of mortals, and widows, because in theory they have nothing to live for after their husbands are dead, are sacrificed to their ancestors' spirits.

William Henry Spangle, an energetic promoter from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, startles the people of Ka-Choo upon his arrival by interrupting an ancestral feast and announcing that he has come to get a title and a long line of ancestors.

He further disregards custom by waiting outside of the city gates with Omee-Omi, one of the royal widows, who has been left to be devoured by the tigers which come down from the hills every night.

Princess Hunni-Bun, the Sho-Gun's niece, is in love with Tee-To, a bachelor with ancestors only three hundred years back, which makes him ineligible as a suitor. He is forbidden to see Hunni-Bun again, so they decide to wait for the tigers with Omee-Omi and Spangle outside the city walls and die together.

All four are taken prisoner to the Forbidden City to await the Sho-Gun's decision, upon his return from a pilgrimage. There Spangle with his Yankee ingenuity, and with the aid of Hanki-Pank, a clever native, whom Spangle makes his attorney, revolutionizes customs and contaminates the Oriental atmosphere by making a fool of the ancestors, and through their so-called "injunctions" arranges things to his own convenience.

Upon the Sho-Gun's arrival Spangle is sentenced to die, but the executioners refuse to kill him because he is a walking delegate of the executioners' union. The kingdom is in such a condition that only the Sho-Gun's abdication in favor of Spangle will prevent a financial catastrophe, so Spangle gets his title, a long line of ready made ancestors, and the widow, Omee-Omi. The troubles of Princess Hunni-Bun and Tee-To are ended when Spangle is made Sho-Gun.

Women's League Concerts

Vivian Kellam Richardson

TWO years ago the custom of giving the annual County Fair by the Women's League was discontinued, as a tradition not worthy of the progressing standards of the University of Washington. It was thought that with the transition of Washington into the ranks of the finest universities that the County Fair was a waste of time, money and energy.

However, Women's League needed some means of supporting its organization. Every year Women's League helps a number of women to finish their education by loaning for a period of two years, without interest, any amount of money up to two hundred dollars. Furthermore, in the past two years, Women's League has desired to help with the Stadium fund.

And so to Vivian Kellam, then president of Women's League, is due the credit of starting the custom of Women's League concerts and of presenting to the students and people of Seattle programs of high musical standard.

Two concerts were given last year with Aryness Joy, vice president of Women's League, as chairman in charge. Frances Alda and Anna Case, both well-known soloists, were presented, and a "new tradition" was firmly established at Washington.

This year three concerts were given. On October 31 Arthur Hackett, well known tenor, appeared in recital in Meany hall, and a small but appreciative audience heard him sing. His program was well selected and was received very favorably.

Alma Gluck, one of America's best known sopranos, and her distinguished husband, Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, appeared in joint recital on Wednesday evening, February 10. For the first time in many performances held in Meany, the hall was packed, and even the stage and all standing room was taken by enthusiastic listeners. The program, one of splendidly balanced numbers, was heartily applauded, and both artists were encored again and again.

THE 1972 TREE

Alma Gluck was most popular in the "old songs" which have endeared her to the American public on the records, while Zimbalist was unanimously pronounced one of the finest living violinists.

Alma Gluck sang such numbers as "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," and "Within a Mile of Edinburgh Town" with all the graciousness that one might ask, and came back with familiar encores which were enthusiastically received. The talents of the two artists were admirably displayed in the last group, where both appeared in a rendition of Masseets' "Elegie." The song "Fiddle and I," in this group, made a popular appeal.

Sofia Breslau, contralto, sang on April 3 at Meany hall, in the third concert of the season. Her program, too, was well chosen and well received. As a whole the concert season of Women's League was very successful from more than one standpoint.

The committee in charge was headed by Mabel Anderson, chairman. Other members of the committee were Helen Child, publicity; Margaret Sparling, finances; Millicent Hughes, paid advertising; Wilma Shaffer, Florence Baes and Dorothy Redmon, poster publicity; Vera Allen, program; Mildred Tweed, arrangements; Elizabeth Pond, Celeste Moll, Louise MacDonald, Joyce Gowen and Emily Hershberger.

Women's League plans to continue giving concerts each year, and to bring to the University only artists of recognized musical standing. Students have been privileged to hear these artists each time at a very nominal price.

Approximately two hundred students worked on each concert this year, and it was through earnest co-operation and sincerity that success resulted. Musical organizations in Seattle also helped in many ways, and to them and to all the other people who helped, the Women's League is indebted. It is hoped that in the future co-operation and willingness will characterize the presenting of the Women's League concerts.

Music Organizations

ONE of the most faithful and hard working musical organizations on the campus, which receives perhaps not its full credit during the year, is the R. O. T. C. or University Band. It has a membership of over forty persons this year directed by A. P. Adams. It meets every Tuesday and Thursday. The first appearance of the organization was on Armistice Day. When Foch spoke in Meany hall, the band gave one number on the program. It also performed on Washington's birthday, Memorial day, and at all the principal football and baseball games. It is the aim of the members to develop into an all-University band. Two credits per quarter are awarded to members. Smokers and other social affairs are given each year by the band.

Women's Ensemble is composed of twenty-one University women who try out for membership. Dean Glen directs Ensemble which meets every Monday. Alma Dick is the official accompanist for the organization. One credit per quarter is given Ensemble members, who are the following girls:

Olga Anderson, Valley Bigby, Martha Brown, Ruth Bamford, Helen Clerk, Mary Currie, Constance Coe, Eunice Davis, Hazel French, Joy Fisher, Elva Krogstead, Ethel Miller, Eslie Olmsted, Edna Pitts, Katherine Peterson, Elizabeth Reid, Gertrude Strachen, Grace Sillman, Maud Tachel, Dorothy Wintermote and Lois Wiley.

The University Orchestra meets every Tuesday night under the leadership of Dean Irving M. Glen. Members of this organization receive one credit per quarter. The orchestra accompanied the presentation of the Creation, and also played for the Spring Opera and for Commencement. The feature of the orchestra is the string quartet which consists of the following persons, Betty Onson, first violin; Horace Gilbert, first violin; Eslie Olmsted, violin; Joy Fisher, cello, and Louise Benton, viola.

No account of music at Washington would be quite complete without mentioning the music we hear three times a day, every college day, and that is, the Chimes. George Bailey, who plays the Chimes morning, noon and night, rain or shine, is surely worthy of mention for helping each University student to assemble college "memories".

Thrills, dearie, thrills! A poor green frosh, but Chester is a "W" man, so we went to the Varsity Ball. It was given in the Hippodrome and it was some ball, you know taxis, stiff fronts, keen dresses and all.

The motif was an Indian Ball and the decorations were hundreds of wierd and artistic Indian art shades and wigwams surrounded by evergreen trees. The programs were tiny brown suede wigwams. The freshman girls serving ice were regular Minnehahas—beaded dresses, mocassins, and hair hanging in long black braids.

Have you heard Harold Week's new Indian number, "Oriole"? It was a feature solo during the intermission and went over big. I'm sure you remember Grant Merrill. I didn't know he could dance, that is feature dance. He and Connie Phillips, in Indian attire, with their skin painted tan and terrible, interpreted a little cave man conquering stuff to a soft Indian melody.

Professor Meany announced the men and women "W" winners during the intermission, and at 12:01 we all rushed for hats and wraps amid the strains of "Kiss Me Again".

The Varsity Boat Club informal at the Armory last night was exciting because during the evening the most popular girl was chosen by a formal vote to christen the new crew shell "Sundodger," and who do you think won, Gladie? Artie Lee Hart, Blossom Perry, Ruth Bamford and Doris Howard were among the charming candidates for the capacity of sponsor of the new shell. The vote was a majority of two hundred or more for Doris Howard.

Professor Meany talked on the history of crew and then Miss Howard with the ease of an experienced sponsor broke the bottle, and now the "Sundodger" is ready to show California how to travel. You must come over for the crew race, Gladie, you know how thrilling they are.

The old Armory walls and beams were covered with greens. During the evening a shower of little white paper crew paddles came showering down among the crowd. These were all numbered and then numbers were drawn and the two lucky ones received huge boxes of chocolates. Someone said the Delta Gamma house was well supplied with candy for a week.

The committee was Rowland France, Clarence Magnuson, Melvin Anderson, Edward Cushman, Robert Butler, Ronald Walker with Charles S. Dunn as chairman. The Varsity Boat Club has loads of pep this year. Must leave for my two o'clock now.

Don't know who conceived the idea of the Junior-Senior Round-up, but it went off with a bang. No one was killed or injured, although it resembled a true frontier settlement. The committee were dressed in chappys, stetsons and bright colored 'kerchiefs, and carried lariats and pistols. They made the tea hounds feel out of place, and the "reg'lar fellers" felt fine.

The dance was held in the R. O. T. C. Armory last Friday, January 13. The Round-up is a new affair in the social calendar of the University, but everyone is enthusiastic about its success and the democratic spirit it fosters. I hope they have another Round-up next year. It was informal enough so that everyone got acquainted and felt free in doing so.

You should have seen Jack Westland and Allyn Grant, you know they're both peppy boys and they gave a stunt of music, dance and jokes. There was a coon stunt, then Gerry Caldwell, ferocious and wild, gave an exhibition of fancy roping until we all vividly imagined the old sage brush plains and wild horses.

The refreshments were both entertaining and useful for the purpose. The lolly pop supply lasted all evening, but the soda pop in bottles seemed to be the hit of the evening, especially with the men. Chester said he guessed they all felt more or less at home, don't you know?

Bartlett Rummel was chairman of the Junior committee and Marion Herrick chairman of the Senior one. Do write to me soon and send me that picture. Oh yes, Gladie, we had a serpentine and I got the nicest man. I'll tell you all about what he said later.

My dear, I have never been to such a wonderful party and had such a marvelous time in all my life. The Junior Prom this year was a futuristic ball called the "Bizarre Ball". It was given at the Masonic Temple down-town. The whole atmosphere was odd and different, with the entire place draped in a subdued gray. On the walls hung huge paintings of futuristic models eight feet high, and clever art panel work which added to the beauty of the general effect. Parrots, magpies, parrakeets and grotesque lamp shades lent an odd tone.

Dick Bennett had charge of the stage where the orchestra played, and, Gladie, I wish you could have seen all the lovely Batiks and tie-dyed things. I understand they were from the Japanese shop. Anyway, they were most attractively arranged.

The vogue maids that served the ices seemed to blend into the scheme. Their dresses were gray and they wore white aprons and caps. They were all bobbed-haired girls. Not so futuristic, now, is it, Gladie? Rather realistic, I should say!

The specialty acts were good. The Cornish School pupils gave a fan dance and Caird Leslie's pupils gave a futuristic dance. Nat Bender and his committee of twenty certainly deserve congratulations for putting over such a big affair so well.

My dear, I nearly forgot to tell you about the programs. They were gray leather card cases, embossed with the University of Washington seal. Inside this case were two "voguey" programs.

Dear Gladie:

Thought I'd never get over the embarrassment of asking Chester to Tolo. It was last night. He's still reminding me of what a good party it was. It really was, altho you can't imagine it, as the dance was given in the old Armory.

The decorations were simple, but effective, mostly effective, you know! Freshman girls in gay organdies and clever frilled dresses dotted in among festoons of evergreens attracted everyone's notice, especially Chester's.

Tolo club, as usual, announced their Senior girl pledges. Dr. Padelford and Dean Ward assisted in shouting forth the fortunate ones. There were eleven pledges this year. They were: Elizabeth Barclay, Irma Beager, Iris Canfield, Adelaide Fairbanks, Susan Latta, Minnie Nelson, Blossom Perry, Norma Sims, Margaretta Stuart, Artie Lee Hart, and Marian Homan.

I'll show you the program I got when I come home. It's a darling. You wanted me to keep you informed on all college affairs. Am I not doing my duty, Gladie? I'm going to write about the "Round-up", a new one, next week.

The phone's having a spasm as usual. Goodbye, dearie.

Dearest Gladie:

Did you know, Gladie, that since 1912 the Cadet Ball has been an annual affair? It is to be held this spring in the Hippodrome On April 7.

It is the only Varsity formal that freshman men and women may attend. The freshman and cadets are all required to don their uniforms. Usually about 500 couples attend and it makes an attractive sight as pretty girls in gay gowns and men attired in flashy and saucy uniforms foxtrot and waltz under a canopy of hundreds of flags.

Pledges to Scabbard and Blade, national military honorary, are announced during the intermission of the ball, which, of course, adds to the dignity of the affair. Could you imagine Chester walking up with a military bearing in his R. O. T. C. uniform, Gladie? If he didn't laugh himself, everyone else would because Chester is so bowlegged. Just think of him in uniform and you have "one of our best jokes this season."

Well, anyway, I wager you've learned something from this letter. Well, dearie, help me concentrate hard so that Chester will hurry and ask me to Cadet Ball.

Devotedly yours,

Dead tired, just got home from the Senior Soiree and my feet are killing me. We went to Rogers' and had to run to get in on time. The Seniors had a traditional dance this year. All the traditions were there but Professor Meany.

The decorations were miniatures of the chimes, stadium, columns, and frosh basin. Greens were used around the walls and over the lights.

Believe me, it was so real that every time I looked at the chimes I thought I was running to an eight o'clock, or hurrying home to lunch.

Just got home from the Frosh Frolic. We only attend once in a life time, so I tried to derive full benefit while there. You know I've been going out with Chester so much I really did feel like I had landed among infants when I arrived at the gymnasium. Frankly I looked around for the toys and wanted to suggest all evening that we all play London bridge. Isn't this catty of me? You'd think I am not a loyal 1924-er at all to hear me. But we spent half of the evening at the Senior Soirée because Don wanted to go. The evening at least held variety for us.

I was on the decorating committee and we worked hard all day Saturday decorating the gym. You know those horrid old walls are so hard to cover. We had showers of crepe paper of all colors hanging from the ceiling and the refreshment booths covered with the same. The music was good and so was the punch.

The programs were shaped like paddles—reminding the men, even in the midst of pleasure, of the ever watchful vigilance committee. The favors were tiny green caps.

Bagshaw

STEPPING into the breach like the true Washingtonian that he is, Enoch Bagshaw, director of Washington gridiron destinies, has constructed for his Alma Mater a foundation for future Purple and Gold football elevens that is bound to regain for Washington her lost laurels. From every corner of the football world comes the warning to "watch Baggy next fall." Ever since the stocky gridiron genius took over the reins here Washington's stock has soared.

For a period of several years Washington football had been on the toboggan. Then came down from Everett, Washington, one Enoch Bagshaw, former varsity captain and high school coach of national repute. Just now he is busy making good as a college mentor. And the sport critics are predicting that the fruits of his toil will be forthcoming when the 1922 season gets under way.

With the coming of "Baggy," Washington sees the beginning of a much hoped for vision—the institution of a satisfactory graduate coaching system. Last fall the Varsity mentor was assisted by "Crum" Dailey and "Sandy" Wick.

The Freshmen are under the careful tutelage of R. L. Matthews, another ex-Washington star, who has built up for "Baggy" perhaps the best array of gridiron material that has ever been at a Washington coach's disposal. "Matty" took over the Frosh basketball squad at the conclusion of the football season and will handle the varsity baseball team.

The gridiron outlook for 1922 cheers the heart of every Washingtonian. We have a real coach—a crew of husky material—and the determination to do or die.

Enoch Bagshaw

1922 Prospects

WASHINGTON is looking forward to the 1922 football season with hopes of a winning team. These hopes are not unfounded on facts. The dope points decidedly towards a winning team. The teaching and administrative qualities of Coach Bagshaw are beginning to show themselves in the lining up of football material of first calibre.

Bill Grimm, than whom some critics say there is no better tackle on the coast, will be back in school in time to don the moleskins for the fall festivities. Jimmy Bryan, 195 pounds of super-active bone and muscle, after a year's forced gridiron absence, will be on deck for action. Captain Ingram will pilot the squad. Other men besides Ingram who have had one year's coaching under Bagshaw, and expect to be back next year are: Whitman, Hall, Black, Ferry, Parker, Hill, Ziel, Langhorne, Tinling, Haynes, Green, Quass, Wilson, and Hobi.

The frosh squad is expected to contribute some valuable material. Kuhn, Walters, and McCloud are among the most promising.

"Baggy" wants weight on his line, and speed and weight in his back field and ends. The indications are that he will have this, so the school is waiting with confidence for him to turn out "the first team to beat California."

1921 Season

WITH a record of three games won, four lost and one tied, the University of Washington football team, green, woefully light, but with the true spirit of Washington fight, passed through the 1921 season in a sense triumphant. It lost to elevens whose superiority warranted the result, it won from three other teams by good, clean football, and it held first Stanford to a scoreless tie after a thrilling battle and then Penn State, the strongest combination in the East, to a surprisingly low score after probably the greatest game of football Washington fans had witnessed all season.

Ray Eckmann

Whatever the Purple and Gold team did prior to December 3, the feat of battling the high class Penn State eleven to a 21-7 score boosted Washington's football stock to the limit. Sixteen thousand spectators saw the game and they were unanimous in the concession that the Purple and Gold won a moral victory that day.

Bob Ingram, Capt. Elect

Four Washingtonians played their last and best game of football for their Alma Mater that day. Captain Ray Eckmann, through sheer ability displayed when he punched his way practically the whole length of the gridiron unaided through the Nittany line for a touchdown, won undisputed claim to an all-coast halfback choice and mention as a possibility for all-American selection.

Penn State went back to State College murmuring that Zeke Clark was the best tackle they had run up against all season.

THE 1972 TREE

After a season of ill-luck Clark came back and battled his last game in a manner that made the highly-touted Easterners give him praise.

George Rogge, the stocky little guard who put up a fighting, aggressive game all season, wound up his gridiron career in a blaze of glory by tearing great gaps in the Nittany line and throwing Bezdek's pets for repeated losses.

Handicapped by lack of weight, Glen Galligan's invincible fight and speed, combined with a keen football brain, won for Baggy's little end the respect of the big Penn State backs who tried to circle his wing.

THE game with Camp Lewis, the first game of the season and the first game of a Washington team under the tutelage of Coach Bagshaw, ended in a victory for the Purple and Gold.

Although ragged, the game was thrilling. With a lead of a scant three points, the Varsity opened up in the last two minutes of play and scored two touchdowns, cinching the victory.

THE 1972 TREE

The Varsity showed signs of football ability in flashes, but fumbled constantly, passed poorly and showed a lack of experience. The Army eleven started with a rush, but soon showed a lack of team work and drilling. After the first quarter of play they were unable to cope with the younger and better conditioned team.

Washington 7, Whitman 0

The Varsity showed the result of the extra week of practice and played like a different team from the one of the week before. Both teams resorted to frequent punting and passing, neither showing marked advantage.

The only score of the game was made when Hall scooped up a poor punt, ran 30 yards through the scattered Missionary team, and crossed the line just as he was nailed by three tacklers.

Bob Ingram and "Zeke" Clark, the giant tackles, were towers of defense in the line and repeatedly broke through the line and threw the Whitman backs for a loss.

Washington 28, Montana 7

Tearing through the Grizzly defense and blocking the celebrated Minnesota shift, the varsity won a comparatively easy victory from the University of Montana team, and wiped out the smirch of last year's defeat at the hands of the same team, in the third game of the season.

The game started with a rush and in the first quarter the spectators were treated to a 70-yard run by Ray Eckmann, who caught one of Plumber's punts and carried the ball through the whole Montana team for a touchdown.

The second touchdown was almost as spectacular as the first. Glen Galligan blocked a punt under the shadow of the Montana goal posts and fell on the ball as it bounced along the ground back of the Grizzly goal. The rest of the scores were made in the last quarter of play.

The farmers ripped through the Washington line for two touchdowns in the first quarter, and in the second kept the ball dangerously near the Washington goal line. In the third quarter they carried the ball over for another seven points.

Harry Quass was the most consistent Husky ground gainer, getting away for several long runs. Ray Eckmann was prevented from doing any open field work by the soft condition of the field.

happened to Washington in that unlucky quarter is a nightmare, but the conduct of the team in the last three made up for it.

W. S. C. took the ball in the first part of the game and walked it down the field for two touchdowns, seemingly without effort, and from that time on seemed unable to dent the Washington defense.

Only once in the later stages of the game were the Cougars able to threaten the Washington goal. That chance came in the final period when Sandberg carried the oval to the Husky nine-yard line. Here he fumbled and his chance was lost.

victory over the highly-touted Penn State eleven. Coach Hugo Bezdek's Nittany Lions came out of the East with an unbroken string of victories against the strongest teams of their section. All the dope pointed to a walk-away for the eastern team.

But the dope did not materialize. Penn state had a wonderful team. Kilinger, the all-American back, ably aided by his team mates, shone and flashed. They outweighed Washington and presented a smoother running football machine.

But in the face of all of this, Washington's plucky skipper, Ray Eckmann, put the ball over for one hard-earned touchdown. He ran past the 50-yard line on the kick-off before he was stopped. Then it was that another all-American back, playing with the weaker team, time after time punctured the heavy Penn State line, and with straight old-time football forced the play.

Freshman Football

THE Freshman football season for 1921 was probably the most successful in the history of the school. Successful for two reasons: first, two teams instead of one were put into competition, and second, these two teams were as uniformly successful as any one team has been in the past. They were beaten but once and scored on but four times in the whole season of divided work. The two teams were united but once, that being for the game with the Oregon Frosh.

Between seventy-five and a hundred answered the first call Coach Mathews made for recruits. The material was so rich in gridiron possibilities that it was decided to make two teams instead of one, as this plan would give twice as many men a year's experience for possible future varsity work. Coach Bagshaw is looking forward to next year with hopes of finding some of the 1921 babes, who will be able to fill his needs when he makes the "first team to beat California".

Coach Mathews was assisted by Mullen, Crum Dailey and Otto Bardarson. Approximately sixty men turned out consistently for the whole season, and their coaches say that their spirit on the practice field was at all times of the highest order.

Those who won their 1921 football numerals were: Hanley, Beck, Petrie, Dailey, Abel, Hay, McLeod, Don Clark, Perry Clarke, Olson, Boyer, Sherman, Sievers, Livengood, Westrom, Du Bois, Cole, Kuhne, Erickson, Wilson, Lillis, Walters, Wilder, Blaine, Hughes, Harms, Christie, Linn, Cavette, Wilwall, Cosier, Keefe, Holbrook, Olson.

Basketball

PLAYING sixteen games in the Pacific Coast and Northwest conferences, the University of Washington landed third place in the 1922 Coast race after having led every team on the Coast for two-thirds of the season. The varsity took ten straight games without dropping a contest and then struck a snag in the strong University of Idaho combination at Moscow. Out of the final six games on Washington's schedule the Purple and Gold was turned back five times.

The varsity machine swept through a stiff schedule while handicapped by an epidemic of flu that put several members of the squad on the sick list. The team never seemed right after the Oregon invasion. Meeting California on the local floor, Washington's great machine appeared to be off color. The following games proved it.

The journey to Moscow started the Purple and Gold on the descending scale. Repulsed by the Vandals, the best Washington could do at Pullman was to break even with the comparatively weak Cougar five. Then came the disastrous second series with the Oregon Aggies.

Washington had previously beaten the Aggies two straight on the Corvallis floor, but both games went to the O. A. C. team. The second game, the final contest on the varsity schedule, was a hair-raiser. Both quintets appeared evenly matched and the play went into two overtime periods before O. A. C. could slip in the deciding points.

Coach Edmundson

Basketball Squad

THE 1972 TREE

The peculiar four-man defense that is Edmundson's was again resorted to this winter. Heine Sielk, the big center, was used to hover about the enemy basket and play an offensive game solely. Leo Nicholson and Evan Lewis, forwards, and "Windy" Crawford, floor guard, roamed the floor and aided Captain Jimmy Bryan in checking the opposing offensives.

Aside from these five veterans Edmundson really had little to rely upon. As in 1921, but five men got in enough games to make letters, Edmundson's system being to develop a five-man combination to use on all occasions. It is a peculiar fact that during the past two seasons but seven men have won varsity letters in basketball.

Several of the scrubs were used by Edmundson, notably Chet Froude, scrappy little forward; Chuck Frankland, varsity track captain, who played a consistent fighting game at center, and Dave Metlen, substitute forward.

Two varsity veterans wound up their college cage careers last season, Sielk and Nicholson, both two-year lettermen, will be graduated in June. Bryan, Lewis and Crawford will form the nucleus with which Edmundson will mould his 1923 quintet.

One Hundred Eighty-Six

Captain Bryan, unanimously selected as all-coast guard, is recognized as the strongest back guard in coast hoop circles. work with, as well as several likely-looking players from the 1922 frosh squad. "Hec" has experienced two hard-luck years with his varsity basketballers and the campus dopesters predict that he will have his innings next winter.

The 1922 schedule started off auspiciously for the Purple and Gold. Two games with the University of Oregon opened the season here. Both were overwhelming victories for Edmundson's combination of veterans. The first contest resulted in a 76-15 landslide and the second game saw Washington romp away with an easy 48-19 win.

Then followed the triumphant invasion of Oregon. The fast-going varsity trounced the highly-touted O. A. C. machine 39-30 on the Corvallis floor the first night and again won the following night, 32-31. The second series with Oregon at Eugene resulted in another double victory for the Purple and Gold, 46-19 and 40-26.

Ten days intervened between the Oregon trip and the important two-game series with the California Bears. In those ten days the varsity recuperated somewhat its spent strength and the Bruins were repulsed the first night by a 33-32 score after a thrilling exhibition. A 28-23 count in the second game showed that the Purple and Gold warriors were still good and the Washington supporters breathed more easily.

Washington State stopped over in Seattle en route to Berkeley and Stan-his all-coast mythical five and was one of the leading conference scorers. He plays a remarkable floor game and is an uncanny shot from any position. Lewis' average for the season was five baskets per game, an unusually high percentage for a sixteen-game stretch.

Next season prospects point to Coach Edmundson's third season as a varsity mentor with the University of Washington as a promising one. With the trio of veterans, the tall coach will have a number of dependable and experienced super-varsity players to ington was stopped in its career of victory. The Vandals lived up to their reputation and demolished Washington's spotless record by chalking up a 37-31 victory. The two teams played into the overtime period in the second contest, Idaho again winning 32-28.

Two return games with the Cougars followed on the Pullman floor. The series was an even split, Washington taking the first contest 41-22 and the Cougars winning the second 30-20.

The season was brought to a close in Seattle when O. A. C. walloped Washington in two straight games. The first score was 26-21. A desperate Washington team took the floor the following night determined to win its final game. For two halves the game was nip and tuck, the regular playing time ending with the two teams tied up at 25 all. Five minutes of overtime playing again brought the teams to a deadlock, this time at 27 all. In the second overtime period, the Aggie offense converted a pair of field goals that won the game. The 31-27 contest furnished the fans with one of the greatest exhibitions of the cage sport that has been seen on a local floor.

Frosh Squad

THE Freshman basketball team went through a season of fourteen games and suffered but one defeat. During the season they played college, high school and organized amateur teams. They won the city championship in competition with various commercial institutions of the city.

The only defeat of the entire season was at the hands of St. Martin's college at Tacoma, by a one-point margin. The babes had previously beaten St. Martin's by a much more healthy score.

Coach Matthews, who had charge of the successful dual freshman football season, also guided the destinies of the yearling basket tossers. A large number turned out for the first practice and those who were chosen on the squad practiced consistently for the rest of the season.

The squad made a trip east of the mountains during the Christmas vacation and defeated the Toppenish American legion and the Yakima Y. M. C. A. In the city league, the University commercial club team ran the babes a close second for championship honors. It was not until the last game of the season was played that it was known who would top the percentage column.

Coach Matthews in making a post-season statement of the team in general said they should furnish some good material for the varsity next year. The team was well balanced and there were no shining stars that stood out far above the others.

Those who made their numerals in freshman basketball are: Hesketh, Abel, Trumbell, Cole, Petrie, Kunz, Gilmore, Beck and Westrom.

Wrestling

TWO conference meets out of three were won by the University of Washington wrestling squad last winter, the odd match going to O. A. C., the coast champions. Coach Jimmy Arbuthnot's grapplers made a clean sweep of the University of Oregon meet at Eugene after dropping the honors to the Aggies at Corvallis, where the champs took four out of five bouts from the Purple and Gold.

Coach Arbuthnot

Washington State College closed the varsity mat season here and lost to the varsity, dropping the odd bout in a five-match event. The Cougars had previously made a better record against O. A. C. than had Washington.

Three veterans were lined up by Arbuthnot on the five-man team at the opening of the season. Captain Noble McCredy, 145-pound star, Joe Crum, middleweight grappler, and Ralph Gale, old-timer in the lightweight class, were the lettermen who were selected along with Roy Berry, 125-pounder, and Paul Davis, light-heavy, to defend Washington's 1922 mat laurels. Gale suffered a broken rib early in the season, however, and his place was taken by Ray Clithero.

A class 175-pound performer was uncovered this season in Davis, a

An elaborate system of intra-mural tournaments was resorted to by Coast Arbuthnot to uncover and develop new material this season. With a nucleus of six former varsity veterans from which to construct his team, the varsity mentor was not content, and he proceeded to draw upon new timber with the result that he produced a number of clever men who would ordinarily have remained under cover.

Although unable to wrest the championship from the Aggie grapplers, the Washington athletes won an easy victory from Oregon and decisively defeated the Cougars. And in addition, they drew bigger crowds of student supporters than have ever attended wrestling meets heretofore. Approx-number dwindled down to McCredy and Crum, later on, and Davis, Berry and Clithero were added to the list of varsity letter winners.

The three new men will be back in the fold next winter. Arbuthnot is looking forward to a successful season in 1923. His nicely-developed system of intra-mural meets has proven itself this year and has become an established factor in the development of mat athletes for the University. Interest in the sport is worked up to a high pitch through the intra-mural competition and wrestling is being given greater support than has heretofore been noticed.

Darrell Levitt won a decision from Captain McCredy in the try-outs before the Oregon trip but was unable to compete because of ineligibility.

Coach Arbuthnot is encouraged over the showing made by the freshmen this year and expects to get some real competition from them for his lettermen next year.

Straumford, the freshman captain, will be a big factor in the heavy-weight events for next year. The members of the freshman team were Markewitz, Petite, McAtee and Flower.

The freshmen participated in only one meet, the one with Everett Y. M. C. A., in which they took every match but one, winning by a score of 32-4.

Zeke Clark, who rowed in the Purple and Gold shell that beat California on Lake Washington in May, 1920, is back in rowing trunks again, this spring, after a year's absence from the sweeps. The other veterans, who put up such a gallant fight against the Bears on the Oakland Estuary last spring, are Captain Mike Murphy, Rowland France, Bob Ingram, Sam Shaw, Clarence Magnusson and Herman Luft.

The Varsity has plenty of weight, in addition to rowing experience, this year, and followers of the marine sport claim for Washington one of the best eights in crew history. In the pink of condition, the Purple and Gold oarsmen average more than 175 pounds in weight, about six pounds heavier than the varsity crew that was nosed out by the Bruin oarsmen last spring.

Faithful training and long, hard workouts on the lake in all kinds of weather throughout the fall and winter months has borne its fruits this spring in the production of a crew of which any Washingtonian may be proud to boast.

Storm and cold has failed to quench the spirit of the "men of the sea" and the Purple and Gold oarsmen have weathered the gruelling training grind in preparation to represent their Alma Mater against the best eights the college world can offer. A possible trip to the Poughkeepsie regatta holds forth the prospect of seeing a sterling Washington crew in competition against the nation's best this spring.

Determination to wipe out the memory of that close defeat on the Oakland Estuary last year has lent energy to the muscles of the varsity athletes all year. During the freezing cold of the winter months Leader's charges took their daily spins up and down the lake and then repaired to their new training quarters in Terry hall. One cold day in Jaunary the engine in Leader's coaching launch froze and the Varsity mentor was forced to follow the afternoon workout from the seat of a single shell, which he drove in the wake of the racing shells. That's the kind of stuff it has taken to develop the present Washington crew.

A sort of esprit de corps has been formed among Washington's crew men. In spite of the hard, gruelling grind which is the crew man's lot, they love the sport. They have developed an admirable spirit that is best typified by that somewhat overused expression "work for Washington." For the measure of the true crew man is his capacity for work.

1921 Crew on Lake Washington

Early in January the varsity crew squad moved into their training quarters. There, about forty-five hard-working athletes eat, live and sleep together. Like one huge family the crew men pass the greater part of the college year together. Terry hall, known as the naval aviators' barracks during the war, and formerly a men's dormitory, was turned over to the varsity crew squad January 1. And so, we find the Washington oarsmen working, playing, studying and rowing together.

And all for one purpose—to make the 1922 University of Washington crew one of the best crews that has ever stroked a Purple and Gold shell across the finish line.

Freshman Crew

1921 Frosh Crew

WASHINGTON'S freshman crew of 1921 won their annual struggle with the California yearlings early last April on the troublesome Oakland Estuary through sheer superiority in blade work and steady, powerful driving. Outweighed several pounds average weight, the frosh manned their sweeps with a smooth, clock-like precision that drove their shell, the "Washingtonia I," across the finish line with four lengths of open water on their rivals.

Crew critics and the dopesters are still wondering how Coach Ed Leader assembled such a winning combination from a first-year squad never larger than eighty men. Averaging 169 pounds and built entirely of tall, rangy youths, the Washingtonian eight measured closely to an ideal crew in weight and physique.

Trained under Leaders' tutelage for more than six months over the Lake Washington course and worked out twice daily on the Oakland Estuary during the week just previous to the race, the yearlings learned their oarsmanship and developed their close-catching, hard-driving stroke.

In trial races against time, rowed on local waters before going south, the crew established a new record for freshman eights over the two-mile course, rowing the distance in 10 minutes and 11 seconds, faster by two seconds than the best time ever made by a first-year Washington boat.

The oarsmen who travelled south were: Fred Henrickson, Denny Abel, Virgil Murphy, Fred Spuhn, Lloyd Mason, Pete Otis, Max Luft, Carter Edinger, James Esary and Starr Calvert, coxswain.

THE baseball team opened the 1921 season with a flying start, in the preliminary games and the first conference games, that promised to bring the Northwest pennant home to Washington, but hit a slump in the middle of the season and was nosed out for the championship by W. S. C. by half a game.

Up to the first W. S. C. game the varsity held a batting average of more than .300, and were hailed as the greatest team of college ball stars ever seen in the Northwest. The averages of the leading batsmen of the team at this time were: Maloney .444, McMahon .405, Merriott .333, Gardner .324, Barrett .310, Torrance .300.

The Varsity was badly handicapped by the loss of Captain "Bill" Foran, who suffered an injured knee at the beginning of the season, from which he never recovered entirely. "Mickey" McMahon replaced Foran as captain at the end of the season and acted as captain during the trip to Japan. The little home run king made an ideal captain and was a constant inspiration to the rest of the team. The lineup of the team was:

Pitchers—Leonard, Rode, Gardner, Harper and Setzer.

Catchers—Maloney and Land.

First basemen—Barrett and Maloney.

Second basemen—Torrance and Weltz.

Third basemen—Bakke and Harper.

Outfielders—Foran, McMahon, Miles and Land.

The preliminary games of the season were with the Seattle P.-I. team, Ballard, Standard Oil Company, Camp Lewis, Tacoma, and two local Japanese teams, the Asahis and the Mikados. In each of the games the team showed remarkably good early season form and improved rapidly.

The conference season opened with a two-game series played here with the University of Oregon. The Varsity won both games of the series, the scores being 8-1 and 17-5.

Leonard opened the season by pitching ideal baseball, allowing only two hits and fanning seven men and walking none.

The big scores of these first games were due to the ability of the Purple and Gold sluggers to hit in the pinches. Only five men were left on bases in the two games.

Two games with O. A. C. were scheduled for the following week but only one of them was finished, as rain broke up the second in the fourth inning. Washington won the first by a score of 8-3.

A four-game series was played with O. A. C. and Oregon, May 4-7, in which the Varsity broke even, winning one game and losing one to each of the Oregon nines.

The varsity split even with W. S. C. on a two-game series played May 18 and 19. The first score being 6-7 and the second 7-1. The first game of the series was a close one and the score was tied until the eleventh inning when Moran of the Pullman team brought in the winning score.

The second game was won easily, the varsity playing air-tight ball and Setzer holding six hits while his team mates piled up ten bingles against Skadan and Ruley. The result of this trip left W. S. C. in the lead for the championship and the only chance of Washington winning the pennant was by taking both the games with W. S. C. in the return series.

"Spike" Maloney

"Tiny" Leonard

THE 1972 TREE

In the final series of the Conference season the varsity won the first game 6-3. Tiny Leonard pitched a masterful game, allowing only two hits and fanning thirteen. He pitched nine straight strikes to the batters in the final frame.

The next day the game and the championship went to W. S. C. after a tough battle. Everything went well for the first seven innings and then the team blew up. They tried to stage a come-back in the next inning and brought in three runs, but it was punctured before the score could be tied.

Following this unfortunate season the team went to Japan and made the best record for themselves that was ever made by an American team in Japan. They won every series they played in, made themselves popular with the Japanese fans, and acquired the distinction of being the only American team that ever won series from Waseda and Keio both.

In all, the team won 23 out of the 35 games played and made themselves the heroes of Japan. Everywhere they went they were royally entertained and the photographers made a good profit by selling their pictures.

Eleven teams were played during the trip, chosen from the best in the country. The statement that they played high school teams is untrue as there were only two high school teams on the list.

All in all, Washington has just cause to be proud of her baseball team and may look to them to do big things this year, as the nucleus of last year's team were of the sophomore class and there are some likely looking frosh coming up.

Freshman Baseball Squad

FRESHMAN baseball for 1921 was a decided success. Only one game was lost during the whole season. Coach "Dode" Brinker had charge of the yearling diamond squad and it was due to his efficient methods of coaching that the babes finished the season in such good style.

In the first practice game of the season the frosh recruits held the varsity down to a 5-1 score. Then in the regular game with Broadway High School they won easily from the prep school aggregation. In their next affair they whitewashed Queen Anne High School, 8-0.

Then came their first real college game of the season with St. Martin's College. This proved to be a real baseball game, with little hitting and few errors. It was air-tight from beginning to end. Smauling, on the mound for the babes, pitched in big league style and held the St. Martin nine without a hit. Washington won 2-0.

The next game was with the undefeated Bremerton Marine team. Here the first year men completely upset the dope, and won by a 13-3 score over the leather-necks. Over-confidence probably lost the last game of the season for the freshmen. The marine nine came back strong and won a hotly contested game, which completed the season.

1921 Track

1921 Track Squad

MAKING a clean sweep of all dual and western conference meets, and taking fourth place in the National Intercollegiate track and field meet at Chicago, Washington won high honors in track in the 1921 season.

Competing only with the northern schools of the Pacific Coast conference, the Varsity piled up overwhelming scores in their meets with Oregon and Washington State and won the Northwest and Coast conference tilts without difficulty.

Captain August "Gus" Pope and "Vic" Hurley were the outstanding stars of the conference track season. Pope, former Olympian entry and national champion in the discus, consistently raised his own records to the final mark of 152 feet 7 inches.

Hurley was high point winner in three meets and established new times for the Coast in the 220 dash and low hurdles. These two men won 105 points for Washington in Western meets during the season.

The Novice Meet opened the season and revealed several promising varsity men to augment the regular squad. Casey Anderson and Fred Meisnest made their initial appearance in the Novice Meet and showed the speed that later made them valuable as sprinter and miler.

The second annual Relay Carnival, April 23, was a complete success in spite of one of the hardest rains that ever beat on the Stadium. Eight colleges and universities from the Coast and Northwest conferences sent crack athletes for the relays and special sprints and pentathlon events.

Washington won the Relay Carnival by taking first and second in the special 100-yard dash and winning the two-mile relay. Washington totalled 22 points. O. A. C. was second with 12 and the following schools scored: Southern California, 10; Oregon, 7; Montana, 4; Idaho, 4; Whitman, 3; Washington State, 1.

Oregon was humbled by Washington in the first dual meet of the season, May 7, in the Stadium. The final count was Washington 88, Oregon 43. Arthur Tuck broke the Pacific Coast and Northwest records in the javelin and lowered the 1920 national mark. His best toss was 192 feet 4 inches.

"Gus" Pope established a new mark of 145 feet in the discus for a Coast and State record, later to be bettered several times. "Vic" Hurley won first in the century, 220-yard dash, and low hurdles for individual honors.

Washington again triumphed in the second dual meet over Washington State, May 14, on the W. S. C. track. Pope established his record toss of the discus in this meet and won the shot put. The Varsity squad took first in all but five events.

Eldon Jenne, the W. S. C. star, and "Vic" Hurley tied for individual honors with three firsts to the credit of each. Pratt, Douglas and Hathaway took three places in the quarter-mile for Washington. Rowlee of Washington State romped away from the Varsity in the distance runs.

PACIFIC COAST CONFERENCE MEET

California and Stanford refused invitations to the Coast gathering May 21 at Eugene and left Washington a clear field to victory. Washington made 60 points, more than a safe margin over O. A. C., with 48. Oregon with $37\frac{1}{2}$ and Washington State with $18\frac{1}{2}$ were the other entries.

Hurley established two conference records in the 220-yard dash and low hurdles and took first in the hundred for individual honors in the meet. Tuck was second with $10\frac{3}{4}$ points.

Ivin Hobart of O. A. C. lowered the conference time in the two-mile run to 9:51:4. The Oregon Aggies put up a strong fight but were nosed out by Washington in the field events. Again the lack of distance men told against the Varsity.

NORTHWEST CONFERENCE MEET

After prolonged discussion concerning Washington's eligibility to enter the Northwest meet Washington sent a nine-man team to Pullman May 28 and carried off first honors.

"Reg" Pratt established a new Northwest record in the quarter mile of 49:2 and "Chuck" Frankland tied for a record of 6 feet 17/8 inches in the high jump. Hurley equalled his coast record of 21:3 in the 220-yard dash and made a time of 24:3 in the low hurdles for other stars to try to beat.

Washington made 48 points in the meet, O. A. C. 38, Oregon 23, Idaho 23, W. S. C. 20, Montana 12. Idaho and Montana sprinters failed to show their reputed speed and were left constantly by the Coast runners.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE MEET

Five Washington men, Captain "Gus" Pope, Captain-elect "Chuck" Frankland, "Reg" Pratt, "Vic" Hurley and Harry Beall carried Washington's emblem in the National meet of 1921 in Chicago. In sweltering heat the Purple and Gold athletes took fourth place in the meet, which was won by Illinois.

Pope won first in the shot and discus events, completing his last season for Washington with exceptional credit. Hurley took fifth in the century, Pratt fourth in the 440 and Frankland tied for fourth in the high jump.

Washington is particularly fortunate in the 1922 track schedule. With all the major meets in the Stadium and only three varsity letter men lost by graduation, the Varsity should have another season equally as successful as that of 1921.

Coach "Hec" Edmundson

"Vic" Hurley

Freshman Track

1921 Freshman Track Squad

TRACK is largely a matter of practice and training. The more practice and training an individual has under efficient coaching, the more likely he is to star in track. This fact always justifies freshman track even if no meets are won, and no records hung up, because the year's practice will help in doing something in the years to come.

The first year cinder artists, however, were very successful in their competition with the local high schools. They defeated Franklin High in a dual meet 73-32. Hall, Lively, Gallison and Suomela were the Washington men that piled up most of the score.

Next a triangular meet was held with Broadway and Lincoln High Schools. The babes triumphed over their less experienced rivals and made more points than both high schools combined. The final score was: Washington, 70; Broadway, 23, and Lincoln, 20.

A large part of the credit for the season goes to Coach "Hec" Edmundson. He knows that if he is to have a track team in the days to come he must pay attention to his frosh teams. His work in selecting men for events, and the training of these men the way they should be trained, is responsible for the fact that Washington is going on the "track map" of the country in bright red colors.

Those who won their numerals in track are: Suomela, Hoag, Hall, Ryan, Brazier, Allen, Froude, Bellman, Moriarity, Finke, Lively and McDonald.

Tennis

FOUR letter men answered the call for tennis this season, when the wet weather finally permitted the courts to be used. Stuart Barker, captain in 1921; Marshall Allen, former University champion; Bill Taylor and Art Langlie were the quartet of veterans to respond to the call of the coach. In addition there were a number of stars from the frosh class and several representatives of the 1921 squad.

Washington's teams and Washington men were successful in all but one meet in the 1921 season. Marshall Allen gained national distinction by his work in eastern tournaments during the summer, and his doubles partner, Bill Taylor, came in for his share of honor.

Following a long season of preliminaries and tryout matches, Marshall Allen, Bill Taylor, Don Waller and Art Langlie were the four men selected for the Washington team in 1921. Captain Barker was eliminated by Langlie in the final challenge matches of the tryouts. The final University tournament was held just prior to the tournaments with Oregon Agricultural college and the Coast Conference meet at Eugene.

Washington's tennis men made a clean sweep of all contests against O. A. C. Taylor defeated Nevler 6-0, 6-3. Allen won his match from Joy 6-4, 6-4; Waller won from Caldwell 6-0 and 6-1, while Langlie downed Aurwood 8-6, 5-7, 7-5. The doubles went to Washington with Allen and Taylor winning from Joy and Nevler and Waller and Langlie defeating Caldwell and Rosen.

Immediately after the O. A. C. tournament the Washington team entered the Pacific Coast conference meet at Eugene, held in connection with the Coast Conference track meet. Marshall Allen was in bad condition from a recent illness and the hard play of the O. A. C. series, and both men were handicapped by playing on hard-surfaced courts for the first time in the season.

THE 1972 TREE

Allen lost to Jim Davies of Stanford 6-4, 6-3, while Bates of California defeated Bill Taylor 6-0, 6-3. The doubles team of Allen and Taylor lost to the California pair, Bates and Levy.

Washington regained her lost honors against Stanford on the home courts in the first conference tournament of the season. Allen and Taylor won a thrilling doubles match from Jim Davies and Phil Neer, champions at the Eugene conference meet. Allen also defeated Davies. The score of the doubles meet was 3-6, 11-9 and 7-5,

Washington making a splendid uphill fight to victory. Allen took his match 7-5, 3-6 and 6-3, while Taylor lost to Neer, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Following the regular season, Allen and Taylor entered five summer tournaments, playing in the United States and Canada.

The first of the summer tournaments was played in Vancouver. Allen won the Northwest championship by defeating Irving Weinstein of California. Allen and Taylor lost out in the doubles. A tournament was held the following week in Victoria and Allen won from Gardner of California, annexing another championship.

In the Pacific Northwest tournament in Tacoma, Allen lost to Charles Stickney of California. Stickney is one of the oldest men at the game in the West, and his experience and generalship were too much for the younger man.

Allen lost later in the Washington State meet in Seattle to Irving Weinstein, the same man he had beaten in the Northwestern tournament.

As a conclusion to the season Allen and Taylor went to Boston to participate in the National championship tournament and lost to Bob and Howard Kinsey. William T. Tilden, national tennis star, said of the Kinsey brothers: "Individually they are not strong, but the experience they have had in playing together makes them one of the most dangerous doubles team in the country."

INTERFRATERNITY BASKETBALL

PHI DELTA THETA walked away with the interfraternity basketball championship this year against a field of twenty-nine competitors. Sigma Nu, Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Delta Theta were tied for the championship at the end of the regular schedule of games, and the outcome of the tournament was in doubt until the last of the games was played.

The Canadian Club won the independent championship. Five teams were entered in the league.

INTRAMURAL CROSS-COUNTRY

Lander hall won the intramural cross-country tournament, with a substantial lead over their closest competitors, the Alpha Sigma Phis. A new system of conducting the tournament was tried by Coach Arbuthnot, which made it possible for a runner of ordinary ability to score points for his team. Joe Minor, a freshman, won the individual cup, and the interfraternity cup went to the Alpha Sigma Phis.

INTERFRATERNITY BASEBALL

The interfraternity baseball pennant was won by Kappa Sigma after close competition in each of the leagues. The final game of the tournament, between the Kappa Sigmas and the Sigma Alpha Epsilons, was one of the closest of the season. The Sigma Alpha Epsilons started off with a big lead and the score was not tied until the ninth inning. Two additional innings had to be played before the game was won. The final score was 8-7.

THE 1972 TREE

INTERFRATERNITY BOXING

The interfraternity boxing championship went to Pi Kappa Alpha, with Alpha Sigma Phi second. The tournament was run on a point system and the issue was in doubt until the finals.

The finals of the tournament were fought February 6. Ed Hoag, Walter Millette, Harold Ward, E. R. Urbanick and "Brick" Johnson won their bouts.

FRATERNITY-INDEPENDENT BOXING

The Greeks won a decisive victory from the independents in boxing, winning every bout of the final matches. Hoag, Millette, Ward, Urbanick, Johnson, Chadburn and Halverson were the winners in their respective weights.

FRATERNITY WRESTLING

The interfraternity wrestling championship was won by the Pi Kappa Alphas, who also won the boxing championship. Coach Arbuthnot was well pleased over the interest shown in wrestling, and discovered some real wrestling talent in the intramural tournament.

INTERCLASS BASKETBALL

Class basketball honors went to the freshmen, who defeated the seniors in the final game of the series by a 22-6 score. The yearlings had no trouble in leading their older opponents throughout the season, and there was never any doubt as to whom the championship would go.

INTERCLASS CREW

The juniors won the crew races this year by a full length of open water between them and their nearest competitors, the sophomores. The seniors were three lengths behind them and the freshmen brought up the rear. The men in the winning boat were: Grant, Murphy, Dunn, Shaw, Tidmarsh, Ingram, Parkins, France and Doyle.

The sophomores annexed the track championship after a close race with the freshmen. The score of the meet was, sophomores 35, freshmen 34, juniors 22, and the seniors were only able to bring in 13 points.

INTERCLASS BASEBALL

The seniors won the baseball championship without much competition. In the final game they won from the sophomores by a 13-3 score. They piled up seven runs against the underclassmen in the second inning of the game.

INTERCLASS FOOTBALL

The seniors were successful in winning the interclass football championship. The final game was played with the sophomores and ended in an 8-0 score. The day of this game was a disagreeable one, as there was about three inches of soft snow on the ground.

Minor Sports

HOCKEY

Washington has reason to be proud of the hockey team for its work this season. Handicapped by the impossibility of securing the Arena for games except on Monday evening, and by the ineligibility of several of its members, the team, nevertheless, won two championships.

In the Seattle Amateur Hockey association, Washington won five out of the five games entered. The Association is composed of teams from the American Legion, the Eckart Furniture company and an independent team, the Wanderers. In the series with the University of British Columbia Washington won the first game by a score of 3-2 and tied the second with a 1-1 score.

THE 1972 TREE

Too much credit for Washington's success cannot be given to Captain Don McKenzie. His work and generalship was an inspiration to his team. In the games with British Columbia he won the victories practically single handed. In the British Columbia game here he scored all three of Washington's goals. Gordon Little, the goalie, played excellent hockey, and it was seldom that an opponent was able to slip a puck into his net.

The men who made up this year's team were Don McKenzie, Gordon Little, Quentin Quinliven, Gordon Allen, Fred Wong and Guy Wright.

SWIMMING

Swimming has taken its proper place as one of Washington's minor sports this year. Fifty men were turning out twice a week at the Crystal Pool on April 1, and more were reporting each evening. There will be no swimming meets with other schools, and the only time the team will be seen will be in the Junior Day activities. Mac Brown, president of the swimming club, and Jonathan Trumbull, vice-president, are acting as coaches in the absence of Coach Sternberg.

BOXING

A greater interest in boxing was shown this year than ever before in the history of the sport at Washington. A large squad was out all season and the $500 equipment was kept busy.

Only one tournament was held this season, that with the Tacoma Amateur Boxing club. Harold Ward was the only Washingtonian who won his bout in the meet.

RIFLE SHOOTING

With the possible exception of hockey, rifle shooting has this year become the most popular minor sport of the University. Each call for turnouts brought out more men than the range would accommodate. The team, under the tutelage of Major W. D. Frazer, has developed into one of the best in the country. Washington won five of the eight matches entered this year.

The following men fired on the Washington team in one or more of the matches: S. V. Beckwick, H. Crosby, Neil Scott, Karl Kepp, William McAdams, E. L. Colburn, R. E. Miller, G. M. Fling, J. D. Fall, L. Kleinberg, J. Davidson, H. Ehrke and K. Weil. Beckwith and Crosby served as manager and assistant manager of the team.

The scores made by the team in this year's competitions were:

1921 Baseball

Senior Baseball Squad

THE most successful baseball season Washington women have ever had was played last spring. For the first time both women and men witnessed the championship game between juniors and seniors. The men expressed admiration for the team work which the players showed.

Two hundred and thirty-eight women turned out for the sport, forty-five freshmen, one hundred thirty-eight sophomores, thirty juniors and twenty-five seniors.

The senior champions were Pauline Herner, Janet Dewhurst, Gretchen Brehm, Dorothy Little, Rita Meyer, Violette Davies, Irma Pelz, Bodil Weil, Carrie Pettijohn, Ruah Farnsworth, Zipora Blumenfeld, Elizabeth Gunn and Clara Gross.

The second and third team series were won by the sophomores.

Women's Hockey in 1921

STARTING with a turnout of two hundred and fifty women for hockey, the season for the fall major sport was successful. All the games played were very close, and the seniors won the final game from the juniors with a score of four to two.

The senior squad consisted of Elsie Rosen, Olive Enger, Marie Knick-rehm, Jeanette Vandercook, Winifred Champlin, Miriam Craig, Freda Pelz, Ursula Johnson, Alice Warne, Helen Anderson, Margaret Jenkins, Doris Allen, Katherine Dally and Minnie Nelson.

The junior squad included Marion Hoskins, Jane Barnes, Theodora Bailey, Edda Brown, Ethel Hilan, Frieda Portman, Myrtle White, Doris LaViolette, Elizabeth Richardson, Myrtle Cikada, Marie Olson, Ethel Morgan, Elizabeth Parrington, Verla Slater.

The stars of all four classes were chosen at the end of the season for the Varsity team. They were: Ursula Johnson, Elizabeth Richardson, Margaret Jenkins, Winifred Champlin, Frances Burpee, Margaret Glover, Ethel Morgan, Theodora Bailey, Frieda Portman, Olive Enger and Julia Boone.

WOMEN'S FIELD DAY, May 14, 1921, had the largest attendance of any women's track meet ever held at the University.

Winifred Champlin, junior, showed the best form in hurdling. Elizabeth Richardson, sophomore, made the highest record, 72 feet, at the discus throw. Janet Dewhurst, senior, who entered for the baseball throw, made first place with 159.4 feet. Sue Neely, junior, threw the javelin 60.4 feet, winning first place. The seniors came first in the relay race.

The University of Washington has been asked to consider joining the United States Field Hockey association, formed in January of 1922, in the interest of all women who play in field hockey.

ARCHERY

THE archery champion for 1921 was Ellen Herrick, and Julia Carlson won second place. Both were sophomores. Elizabeth Gunn held first place for the seniors, Alice Warne for the juniors and Cecelia Cutts for the freshmen.

TENNIS

Marion Wheaton, junior, held the women's tennis championship in 1921. Rita Meyers held first place for seniors, Irma Fraser for sophomores, and Bonnie McAnally for freshmen.

VOLLEY BALL

Volley ball championship was won by the sophomore team, which was composed of Millicent Hughes, Hughes, Lena Puymbroeck, Julia Boone, Bernice Kennedy, Dorothy Mitchell, Anita Schnitzlein, Marguerite Glover, Mabel Keinholtz, Florice Nicolai, Doreen Shinabargar and Elizabeth Halberstadt.

Junior Day

JUNIOR DAY is the annual spring festival of the University of Washington. Introduced by Dr. Frederick M. Padelford when he came to the University from Idaho in 1903, Junior Day has assumed increasing importance in the calendar as the feature event of the spring quarter.

High Dive

Opening with the Junior breakfast in the Commons, the planting of the class tree and afternoon water sports, Junior Day closes with the canoe carnival on the Lake Union canal and the dance in the Armory.

Last year a permanent float and high diving platform was built and an enormous sign erected to blazon "Juniors" and light the canoe carnival.

At eleven o'clock the breakfast in the Commons attracts the Juniors. Following the breakfast the class tree is planted. All classes in the University participate in the events, but the third year students have complete charge of the program.

in all styles of strokes open the afternoon water sports. Diving from the ten and twenty-five foot platform for men and from the springboard and ten foot leap for women are features of the meet. Canoe races, single and double, plunge contests and fancy diving are included.

Late in the afternoon the Fir Tree ship steams slowly into the canal, with the men who are to be initiated. Dressed in pirate garb and wildly painted in brilliant colors, the men are forced to walk the plank into the water.

With searchlights playing over the surface of the water and lighting up the bright colors and artistic effects of the floats, the canoe carnival on the canal is the striking feature of the evening. Down the canal they slowly float and are reviewed before the judges' stand. Winners in the carnival are announced later at the Armory dance.

Campus Day

Rededicating the Columns

TO "Work for Washington," "Play for Washington" and "Waltz for Washington" is the order of events on Campus Day, the last Friday in April. With the Chimes ringing in discordant melodies, the students gather in oldest clothes before Denny hall at 8 o'clock, prepared for a day of work and play.

Each class and group in the University has a particular task for the day. Under the direction of Dean Milnor Roberts and his staff of student officers, paths are cleared, the golf links improved, the Stadium renovated, underbrush removed, and the entire campus is given its spring dress of beauty.

The Sophomores each year repaint the Columns, which were last year removed to the Sylvan theater and rededicated. The Chimes are polished by Tyes Tyon, the track and ball diamond put into shape, and each year one or more new engineering projects are added to the campus.

To the Law school is given the power of law enforcement on Campus Day. Hard is the lot of the unsuspecting student or faculty member who appears on the campus with a white collar or fails to report for duty. The lawyers patrol the campus and district and their regime is marked by stern and effective justice.

The women of the University maintain first aid service during the day and prepare lunch for all the workers.

Washing the Statue

THE 1972 TREE

At noon all assemble before Lewis hall where lunch is spread on tables in the form of a huge "W." To the accompaniment of inter-class scraps, food is served in cafeteria style to several thousand hungry men and women.

After lunch Prof. Edmond S. Meany presides over the program. Speeches by University regents, Seattle speakers and candidates for the spring A. S. U. W. election are given. Pledges to Oval, Quad and Tolo clubs are announced.

Campus Day Workers

A varsity baseball game in the afternoon calls the fans as the athletic attraction of the day. In the evening an informal "hard-times" dance is held in the gymnasium.

Campus Day not only accomplishes hundreds of dollars worth of improvements for the University campus, but embodies the spirit of Washington in its co-operative effort for the advancement of our home while in college.

Stadium Day

Burning Stadium Bonds

of seats were cleaned, the mammoth stage repaired, the field prepared for the afternoon game and the cinder track rolled. Roads were built around the rim of the Stadium, banks were leveled and fences constructed.

An inter-club crew race from Lake Washington through the Lake Union canal completed the crew season and attracted the crowds just before noon.

Frosh-sophomore tie-ups, tug-of-war, and flag rush opened the program of afternoon sport. The big event of the day was the Stanford-Washington football game. In perfect weather and before a record crowd of spectators, the two teams played to a scoreless tie.

Between halves of the game $30,000 worth of Stadium bonds, representing two years' payment, were burned on the field. Senior women in caps and gowns carried the bonds to the flames with the roar of a field piece and cheers of the crowds drowning the ceremonial proceedings.

Home-Coming

FROM 1861 to 1922 is a long period of years and the University of Washington has turned out many graduate and undergraduate members in its period of life. Once each year, at the annual University Home-Coming Week, alumni from all periods of this history return to Washington for reunion and renewed acquaintance with their Alma Mater.

Home-Coming Week has for the past two years been held in the autumn quarter, closing with one of the great football games of the season. Penn State played Washington as the feature of the celebration last season.

Opening with the Home Economics open house, Home-Coming Week is introduced Thursday evening. Friday night all college men in the state are invited to the annual College Night held in the gymnasium. Rival colleges yell and sing in friendly competition and a smoker program is arranged with the Washington alumnae and active students as hosts.

Class and college luncheons Saturday noon gather the alumni into former associations. The football game and an alumni dance in the evening at the Masonic Temple closed the program last year. Alumni are entertained at the fraternity and sorority houses while visiting the campus.

Under the direction of Clayton Rychard and his student committee, with the co-operation of the alumni association, several hundred alumni gathered for last year's Home-Coming. To get all the alumni into the association is the aim of the organization. With all former Washingtonians interested many important projects may be carried out than are now possible.

Freshman Traditions

FRESHMAN traditions date from the beginning of University history and were adapted at first from observances followed in other colleges and universities. They confront the freshman from the time he enters his first year and follow him until Moving-Up Assembly, late in the spring of his senior year.

Rules for the observance and guidance of the freshman class are published and enforced each year by the freshman vigilance committee, appointed by the class president. The men are not allowed to smoke or fuss on the campus, all freshmen enter Meany hall by the rear door for assemblies, and keep off Denny steps.

Between the opening of school in the fall and Thanksgiving day, St. Patrick's day and Frosh day, the yearling men wear the prescribed green caps and the women green ribbons. Woe to the careless or reckless man who fails to don the headgear or is caught violating the rules, for the paddles of the committee are heavy and swing with deadly velocity. Formerly Frosh pond was used to cool drastic cases, but by action of the University administration is now reserved as the permanent home of fish.

Each year the new students gather one Friday evening, early in the autumn quarter, before Meany hall and take the Ephebic Oath, their token of allegiance to the University. Designed and presented by Edmond S. Meany, keeper of traditions, the Ephebic Oath has acquired new prestige and significance each year.

Introduced in 1915, the first pledge was one of loyalty and service to the University. Each succeeding year pledges of fidelity, honor, reverence and other noble qualities, which should guide the life of the University student, have been added to the oath. The ceremony is one of solemnity and deep meaning and is long remembered by the entering student.

The Frosh Frolic is the annual class dance given by the first year organization. It is held the night after the Varsity Ball, which freshmen are ineligible to attend. Freshmen may attend only the Cadet Ball among the formal dances given by the University each year.

Frosh Day was introduced by the class of 1924. Following action of the class to discard the green caps before Moving-Up Assembly, it was finally decided to create a Frosh day late in the spring quarter. A giant bonfire is built, and on it the green caps are burned with appropriate ceremony.

Sunny

THE 1972 TREE

Professor Meany, Keeper of Traditions

Trophies

SUNNY is the newest of Washington's trophies. Suggested by Marshall Allen to the class of 1923, Sunny was created as an image of the spirit of Washington's new publication, the Sun Dodger. The name was adopted for Washington athletic teams, and has since been used, in spite of controversy for the selection of a new name. Whether the name is retained or not, Sunny will always be one of Washington's prized trophies. The figure is carved in wood and is about three feet high.

The Cougar is the official emblem of Washington State college, captured at the time Washington defeated W. S. C. in football in 1919. Since that time the trophy war between the two schools has increased to such proportions that arbitration has been suggested. Washington rooters at the game brought the cougar out of Pullman and back to Seattle, where it remained in hiding for several months. It is now displayed at the pep rallies, but otherwise kept hidden to prevent its return to W. S. C.

The Big Stick is one of the oldest of Washington's trophies and, with the Hook, revered above all others. It was originally designed after the "Big Stick" of Teddy Roosevelt, at the time the phrase was popular in the national press. It was made and introduced in the football season of 1913. Since that time it has been kept at the fraternity house having the most "W" men. It is now in the possession of Phi Gamma Delta.

The Golden Bear, California's prized trophy, now rests at the University of Washington as one of the prizes of intercollegiate trophy conquest. The bear was taken at the time of the first Washington-California football game at Berkeley. As the bear was too heavy to carry, the head was taken, and is now mounted and chained in a cage, where it has since decorated Washington rallies.

Big Stick

The Hook, designed and created in 1911 by Yell King Bill Horsley, is Washington's oldest trophy. It was created at the time the expression, "Get the Hook," was popular. First taken to a football game at Eugene, the Hook was the center of a battle and was nearly lost to Washington. It is now guarded by "W" men whenever it appears at rallies or football games.

The Oregon Drum was captured from the University of Oregon in 1912. It was brought to Washington and several attempts have been made to take it back to Eugene. The last was in 1919, when two Oregon men took the drum from a Seattle store and shipped it to Portland. Learning of its destination, Merville McInnis and Jack Suthoff intercepted the drum in Portland and brought it back to the University.

Armistice Day Tree Planting

May Fete

Tree Planting

ARMISTICE DAY TREE PLANTING was inaugurated at the University November 11, 1920. As part of the memorial exercises of the day were held by the Service Club of the University, one tree was planted on the campus for each student who was killed during the war. Elms were planted between Denny and Science halls, in what is now known as Memorial Way.

Trees were again planted Armistice Day, 1921. Under the direction of Edmond Meany, elms were placed about the road to the canal, below Terry and Lander halls. A simple and impressive ceremony was held, leaving the young trees as the emblem of Washington's supreme service to the nation.

MAY FETE

The May Fete is given under the direction of the gymnasium department and includes hundreds of girls in its program of dances and tableaux. Grouped about one central theme, the dances picture the story which the fete portrays.

SENIOR TRADITIONS

WASHINGTON'S Senior traditions date back to the first graduating class of the University. Seniors have worn the cap and gown and held their class day and commencement exercises each year since the first group completed their college course.

On Class Day the graduates meet in cap and gown in Meany hall and hear the class prophecy and class will. Each year the Senior class gives the University a gift which serves as a memorial of the class. Planting of the ivy with the Senior Spade is part of the Class Day program.

Graduation exercises are held in Meany hall, when graduates receive their diplomas from the president.

The purpose of the Tillicums is to bring together, as nearly as possible, all of the independent men of the University, that they may co-operate in making a bigger and better Washington. The means to this end are frequent "smokers," dances and meetings of various groups that have common interests. It is hoped to make the organization a bond between the alumni and the University, which will be beneficial to both.

snap-shot solicitor a cigarette the other day and made our poet very jealous to see the s-s s. go Camel walking around. The poet pounded out this stuff in a white fury:

I know I'll bask in Fortune's light,
And be a millionaire;
I know I'll sit upon the world
When Cowling grows some hair;
Oh, I will be the greatest man
That ever made folks stare;
I'll feature in the headlines, too,
When Cowling combs his hair!

Sielk

Henry "Heinie" Sielk, elongated basketball scenter, terpsichorean tangent, member of the College Clothes club, Kappa Sigma by initiation, and Philosophy Hall mid-class promenader, will not return to his country estate at Spangle this summer because the "girl next door" got married. Henry will teach golf this summer as he is very proficient in the vernacular used by all golfers and golfees.

"I am not a heart-breaker, as is the popular opinion," the Spangle lad said to our typist. "And if I have in the past year broken an occasional few hundred hearts why it hasn't been my fault. However, I shall only break brassies, putters, mashies and dates this summer. I intend to lead a life of asceticism then."

We don't know what little Henry said to our typist but anyhow this is what the janitor found in the waste-paper basket.

I'm in LOVE. I'm in LOVE. What shall i do? H8es the grandest, most wonderfulest, adorablest man I kno. hIs eys are so wonderfull—he8s different—you kno—hants me an everything. And I'd love to marry hym—oh, gee! but he8s so short; why gosh, kid, he can8t be over seven feet and you know yourself Agnes, we swore we wouldn't marry any man under ienght feet all. What8el i do. Anser quik.

Watkins

entire campus for her activities in the capacity of a Defeated Candidate, has announced her decision to put the University Infirmary out of business by selling her father's remedies on the campus. Her father is the famous J. R. Watkins of Minnesota, who manufactures Watkins Pulverized Cocoanut Oil for the motion picture people to use on their hair. He also makes a linament and sells it on the strength of its alcoholic contents.

Our poet, who is an addict to Watkins Linament, drank a full quart the other day and after becoming a D. T. he wrote this and left it on our desk. We refuse to print it:

When Inez gets an awful cold that settles in her nose,
She cannot talk like most girls do although she blows and blows;
At last of course, she conquers it, the cold, egad the sneeze;
And then goes 'round and brags for days of Watkins remedies!

Did you ever stand on the street at night and see a wonderful dame;
Thrill a bit at the sight she presents and crave to know her name?

I haven't.

Did you ever sit in a theatre loge next to a woman you did not know,—
Long to be on friendly terms and whisper a word or so?

I haven't—
the dentist killed my nerve.

AIN'T IT FUNNY?

Mr. E: "Yes, I must be in style! I saw at least six men downtown today with the same kind of hat on that I wear!"

Mrs. E: "Good-ness gra-cious, what shall I do? I saw a woman downtown today who was wearing a hat identical to mine! George, I'll just have to have a new hat, that's all there is to it!!"

Girls always fall for a guy by the name of Willie, because there is always a chance that he will.

BRAINS

I was helping her with her accounting. I had shown her everything, and worked all the difficult problems for her. She was grateful. She radiated thankfulness and her eyes sparkled.

When I got through she looked at me and cried: "Which do you use, Pepsodent or Colgate's?"

PAINTED PICTURES

A dab of powder,
Really makes
The co-ed louder.

Razz from Stanford Quad

The Tyee and Stanford Quad have exchanged nut-section pages this year. The rhymed prose below was written for the 1923 Quad by Wallace Irwin, ex-1900, Stanford. He was editor of the Quad in 1900 and wrote this jingle as a reminiscence of his editorship days.

Editor "Quad,"
You have an enviable job,
I do not think.
I was once editor of the "Quad"—
I have also undergone a gallstone operation
And had my tonsils pulled out by the roots.
But the last-mentioned
Calamities
Are inconspicuous
By contrast—
I took them under ether.
But O!
Those delirious days
When I was a blushing Junior,
Could wear my Ugly Plug
And look forward to the time
When I would be a Senior—
Maybe
Possibly Perhaps,
When I was elected Quad Editor
I stepped right over the Arch,
Such was my enviable excitation.
Then Trouble came.

My Business Manager
Was Hank Taylor
Who wore an eyebrow mustache
And looked like a Heidelberg duelist.
He was a genius for getting ads.—
Corset Ads.
Funeral Notices.
Boosts for Corn Salve—
Henry brought them in in copious abundance.
"Mick," said Hank to me,
"When the expenses of this vol. are paid for
There will be a Neat Sum
Remaining
For our old age."
Hank spent his days and nights
In S. F. Calif.,
Combing Market Street
For lucrative publicity.
And when he returned
His conversation sounded like $$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$$.

THE 1972 TREE

Oh yes
I spent a great deal of time on the Comic Department.
We specialized on Caricatures.
We were supposed to submit them
To the Committee on Stewed Affairs.
But we didn't.
What happened then,
I ask you Muses, Messes and other divinities
Of the Stanford Quad?

On a foggy morning,
Nigh to the day of publication
There came a printer's strike,
The callous sub-ed who was supposed to help me
Got the plates mixed
So that a portrait of the Zeta Psi Fraternity
Came out labelled,
"David Starr Jordan"

Also
The weather was foggy and I broke my ankle
Jumping out of an Encina window
During midnight gym.
Also
I was summoned before the faculty with the question
Why?

Why didn't I submit those daggasted caricatures
To the Comm. on Stewed Affairs
Before date of going to press?
How did I know?
Also
Hank Taylor
Got a note from Melville Best Anderson
Threatening him with extinction
If he didn't stop ad. ranking
And take that exam. in "Shakespearean Love Affairs"
(A branch of study in which Hank was ever deficient.)

Then every thing blew—
Wealth vanished,
Glory faded,
The Quad was late.
I had a fight with a cartoonist,
The Faculty discovered me
And,
As they say in the movies,
"After that Came Darkness and with It Merciful Peace."

I sympathize
And remain
Yours for disarmament

—Wallace Irwin.

LAMP the LOGIC

Personal

This is a personal poem
Composed in a personal way,
So the folks who to me are not personal
Must personally stay away.

Now I loved you and you loved me
And life was drawn-out bliss
When you called me your brother
And I called you my sis;

Months went by—all winter months,
Then winter weary fled;
But I?—I still remembered
The promising words you said.

Now if you hadn't married that "somebody else,"
And I hadn't married Marie,
I would have been the husband of you
And you would be married to me!

Theta: "Heard you fell for Heinie."

Pi Phi: Nop! he bent over."

"Life is just one dam thing after another," groaned the hard-working engineering student.

Gardner says—

"IMPERIAL, as you know, means the height of perfection"—and when evolved into the modern laundry, plus "A BEAR WITH THE WATER" notions, you will become convinced of our superiority. Yes, honestly, if you will drop over to my plant and let me take you through, you will find the cleanest, most desirable laundry establishment in the Pacific Northwest. The printer of the TYEE—a good friend of mine—told me he hoped to have a "Daylight plant" just like ours, one of these days. We are arranging a special UNIVERSITY SERVICE for you, and hope you will like it.

IN producing the TYEE this year—if we have done the book a little better, or if we have helped revive traditions and get “the Spirit of Washington” more clearly before you—it is due largely to the fine brand of co-operation exhibited by the Editor, Miss Ruth Ainsworth, Business Manager Herbert Brink, and their staff workers.

"Sergeant," said the officer, "I was looking last evening for some records concerning the religious services held every Sunday morning, but could not find them in the files. Where are they?"

"They are filed under 'H', sir," answered the sergeant in charge of the files.

"Why under 'H'?"

"Because they begin at half-past nine, sir."

HERE is where, with mother's assistance, I worked my way from "College Days to Candy Ways."

HOMES
THAT'S OUR BUSINESS

We claim a closer, more intimate acquaintance with University and North End properties than any and all other offices in Seattle. Since 1905 we have been listing, inspecting, appraising, selling and renting University and North End properties, and this has given us a more exact knowledge of values than is possible for any other office to have without the same years of experience.

Q The Star is the favorite newspaper of U. of W. students. There is a reason why. The reason is—similarity of viewpoint.

The Star does not take itself and the world too seriously; neither do collegians. The Star has a sense of humor; so have you. The Star finds joy in living, joy in the outdoors, in sports, in books, in people, joy in the whole vast scheme of things; and that is essentially the university student's feeling, too.

Q In controversial subjects The Star always tries to learn and to present both sides of the question; it goes after ALL the facts as a basis of every judgment; it believes in science and research and the open mind—the university idea again.

But when The Star does feel deeply on any subject, does thrill with the importance of a great cause, it throws its whole force and intelligence into the fight for its convictions; that also is the collegian's way.

Mr. Tarzan Jones was sitting down to his breakfast one morning when he was astounded to see in the paper an announcement of his own death. He rang up friend Howard Smith. "Hello, Smith!" he said. "Have you seen the announcement of my death in the paper?"

"Yes," replied Smith. "Where are you speaking from?"

"Doctor," said the beautiful young woman who had become the wife of a rich old man, "tell me the worst. I will be brave and try to bear it."

Leading her gently from her suffering husband's bedside, the doctor answered: "Nerve yourself, then, for a terrible shock. He's going to get well."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Roland, the son of a New England minister, called on his girl one Sunday evening and, after the usual preliminaries, Laura asked him if he did not want to go to church to hear his father preach.

"Do you know what the text of the sermon will be?" asked Laura.

"Yes; 'Love One Another.'"

"Oh, what a lovely text," said Laura.

"Suppose," Roland suggested softly, "we let the old gent preach and we go on the front porch and practice?"

And that was the fatal beginning."

A serious thought!

O H how quickly you got a position. Seems to me only a few months ago you couldn't do anything. How did you do it?

Well, just this—I went down to Seymour & Company and they taught me to operate a Comptometer, Burroughs Calculator, Monroe Calculator, Adding Machine, Bookkeeping Machine and typewriter and then one day a call came for help and I had satisfactorily passed all my examinations so I was given a trial and you see I made good.

They train boys and girls both in every line of work where a machine is used for figuring purposes. Call on them, I am sure that they could help you in some way—you'll find them at 226 Seaboard Building.

THE ENGINEER

The engineer is surveying the woman. He is plumb coo-coo about her. He likes the looks of her transit—she walks like a Follie girl on Broadway when she goes past Tante Vantegeer's men's furnishing store. She gave him the icy stare that musta weighed three hundred lbs. when she saw the prof out there, and knew that the kid wasn't a surveyor—just a Woolworth imitation.

A woman who had been to a garden party garbed in the least and latest of Fashion's decree, on returning to town experienced the first effects of a possible chill. She hastened to her doctor and sought advice as to the best means to prevent an oncoming cold.

The doctor was abrupt. He merely said, "Madam, you had better go home, dress yourself and go to bed."

"Have you anything to say, prisoner, before sentence is passed upon you?" asked the judge.

"No, your lordship, except that it takes very little to please me."

ETIQUETTE FOR EATING AT COMMONS

Borrow 50 centavos from your elbow-friend in your 11 o'clock class, and as soon as class is out, rush recklessly to cafeteria line. Finding it has grown beyond control, go to top of stairs and get in front of best friend. Remind him how you slipped him in during registration. In going down steps be careful not to step on heel of town-girl in front of you—you might knock it off. Enter between rails—keeping feet down. Grab 18 lb. platter.

Take two forks, two knives, two teaspoons and two napkins. The extra fork, knife, etc., may come in handy at a fight or a wedding.

Pass in front of food, grabbing blindly—it's all equally bum. Take cake—not pie; pie is too plebian. Follow platter around and stop in front of human adding machine. Get check and pursue platter to cashier. If you are reasonably sure he can't, why ask him if he can change a $50. If you think he can, just give him the four-bits you borrowed. Stroll with WILLITS BROTHERS CANOES are correct in design, in construction, and in their seaworthy qualities. They are designed by men who are canoeists as well as draftsmen, thus insuring a degree of perfection not ordinarily found in canoes. They are made of the finest materials and built by skillful mechanics.

Stroll down to the University Canoe House, where these canoes are on display, and see them for yourself. Whether you buy or not, they are well worth seeing.

What the Paternal Says

Lesson II.

My pa—pa does not seem to know
It take an aw-ful lot o' dough
To keep a guy in school;
He says he bets I stay up nights
And vi-o-late my col-lege rights,
And act the reg-lar fool.

But if he knew how much it took
To take out Miss Lucretia Luke,
He wouldn't think me bad;
For me she must ride in state, y'know,
And since the tax-i sticks me so,
The pa—pa raves, e-gad!

ADVICE FOR THOSE WHO HAVE EIGHT O'CLOCK CLASSES

8:00—Chimes ring. Awaken and try to make out what tune it is. After giving it up as bad job, get up and wake up all those on the sleeping porch who have no morning classes. Rush from porch in time to escape murder. Assume a few clothes. Leave house via kitchen, grabbing groceries with either hand. Complete mastication before reaching campus. If eight o'clock is in Denny, run with utter abandon—you might make it. If eight o'clock is in Engineer's hall—stop to admire campus herbage—count the cars in back of Denny—and admire the work on Education building—you won't make your first class anyhow.

A Gateway to Progress

There it stands—a simple forty-foot gateway but unlike any other in the entire world. Through it have come many of the engineering ideas that have made this an electrical America.

The story of electrical development begins in the Research Laboratories. Here the ruling spirit is one of knowledge—truth—rather than immediate practical results. In this manner are established new theories—tools for future use—which sooner or later find ready application.

The great industries that cluster around Niagara Falls, the electrically driven battleships, the trolley cars and electrified railways that carry millions, the lamps that glow in homes and streets, the household conveniences that have relieved women of drudgery, the labor-saving electrical tools of factories, all owe their existence, partly at least, to the co-ordinated efforts of the thousands who daily stream through this gateway.
